PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

The Fruits of Our Labor

hose of you who read the newspapers might have noticed already that it has been another interesting and productive month for the League. I'm delighted to be able to outline for you a number of successes that we have achieved, the effects of which will be very clear. At the same time, I'd like to ask for your support in helping get police officers voice among the decision-makers of Los Angeles.

Reforming the Discipline System

First, let me say how pleased I am to report that Chief Parks has agreed work with the League to jointly develop ciplinary guidelines. This is a major first step toward accomplishing something that has long been a major League objective — eliminating the subjective, arbitrary, inconsistent and unfair way in which the Department tends to handle disciplinary matters. I will keep you all posted on developments as the process unfolds. Suffice it to say that this is a significant step by the Department in the direction of improving morale, helping retain good officers and ensuring fairness for all.

Deferred Retirement

e are also making encouraging progress to create a Deferred Retirement Option Plan (DROP). I am delighted to announce that this will now appear on the April ballot. If voters approve, the DROP will give our most highly experienced officers a strong incentive to continue working for LAPD rather than retiring or moving to other departments. The city benefits greatly from ments. The city benefits and expertise of these long-time professionals, while the folks who take advantage of DROP earn a very large lump sum amount of money with which to start a whole new life. Like discipline reform, DROP is another huge win-win for everyone

Pension Enhancements

nother proposal that we have managed to place before the voters concerns pension enhance-ments. You'll be glad to know that the Council has approved putting on the June ballot a measure that allows officers to retire after 20 years and get 50% of their salary as a pension. What is particularly gratifying to the Board of Directors is that, if approved by the voters, this measure will mean that officers who retire with 33 years of service will receive 90% of their salary as a pension.

Los Angeles Times

On another note, the Los Angeles Times ecently labeled me "a frequent critic Chief Parks. I have to take issue with this description and, indeed, I have written a letter to the reporter about this. I pointed out that, while the Chief and the League have different views on a number of very important issues, and while there are some things that he believes in that I will always criticize strongly, I respect him on a personal level and admire his many years of experience and dedication to the Department. It is important for those of us working for the best interests of League members that we remember that it is possible to disagree without being disagr Maintaining a good working relationship with the Department's leadership, even in the face of very tough issues and major policy disagreements, is very impor-We have far more in common with the Department and its management than we have differences. Name-calling and personal attacks can only undermine our cause and must have no part in the League's strategy for the future.

Supporting Two of Our Own

n the next two months, Los Angeles voters will go to the polls to begin the process of electing a new Mayor and City Councilmembers. For the first time ever, we have an opportunity to elect not one but two of our League members and Directors to the L.A. City Council.

Dennis Zine is a candidate for Council from the 3rd District. Ken Hillman is running for the Council from the 15th District.

I cannot overemphasize how important it is to our future that these two outstanding candidates be elected to serve on the Council. They have both spent their entire working lives in service to the community as Los Angeles Police Officers and are both well known as men of outstanding integrity.

For years we have complained that the City Council doesn't understand what we deal with on the streets of Los Angeles. Imagine how different things could be with two of our own on the Council. As two former police officers, Dennis and Ken would be perfectly placed to explain to their Council colleagues and the media how things really work at the LAPD, how important it is to have good working conditions, and how vital it is that top management includes people who will listen to and act on the daily concerns of the folks on the front lines.

The opportunity to have that is here and now. But Dennis and Ken need financial help to turn this opportunity into success. Council campaigns are expensive and, being police officers, Dennis and Ken aren't exactly wealthy guys.

Please consider writing a personal check for $25, $50 or $100, or whatever you can afford for each of their campaigns. They will do a great job for you and for the city. They will never forget where they came from and they will always be available to hear your concerns in a way that only fellow officers can understand.

The Energy Crisis & the LAPD

s everyone in California is painfully aware, our state is in the middle of the worst energy crisis it has ever own. We neglected to build any power plants for the last ten years while our electricity demands were growing at 3 to 8 percent a year. Now that we are on the verge of rolling blackouts, an almost permanent Stage 3 crisis, state government is finally waking up.

Governor Davis has proposed a sweeping energy conservation program that includes using the state's law enforcement community to enforce prohibitions against wasteful public uses of electric power. Under the Governor's emergency order, auto malls, shopping centers and other retailers who use sive amounts of after-hours lighting could be fined $1,000.00.

The League has taken the initiative of writing the Los Angeles City Council to suggest that the Council seek a $2 million grant from the state to provide a special overtime budget for Los Angeles Police Officers who wish to earn extra money working special energy efficiency details Officers would be trained to work with businesses to reduce external energy usage without compromising employee or public safety and without increasing crime-related risks. Citations would be issued only as a last resort, when a business owner refu es to make any effort to cooperate and the violation is particularly outrageous.

We have not yet had a response from the Council. However, we believe our propos-al presents a dual opportunity for League members to supplement their incomes and make a useful contribution to helping save the city and state from the dangers of rolling blackouts, which themselves repre-sent a very serious threat to public health

Looking Forward

s you can tell, it's been a busy month! But our efforts are paying off. All of the Board Members want you to know that we will continue to work hard to improve the conditions of police officers. While it is important to maintain a good working relationship with the Chief and the Department, in order to get results, those results will be our number one focus We've made excellent progress, but we know we have much more to do. Be assured that we will keep you fully informed of our activites. In the meantime, let me close by urging you again to support Dennis Zine and Ken Hillman in their election efforts — so that they can be in a position to support all of us.

Home Ownership Assistance Program

Recently I was reacquainted with the Home Ownership Assistance Program sponsored by the Los Angeles City Council, Mayor's Office, the Chief of Police and Fire Departments. The program provides home loans for officers and firefighters who purchase a home within the city limits of Los Angeles.

Two years ago Mayor Riordan, Chief Parks, Chief Bamattre and the Los Angeles Housing Department launched a program, which provided zero down payment home loans for police officers and firefighters. This program is in part-nership with Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corporation (Freddie Mac), and the Federal National Mortgage Association (Fannie Mae), and gives police officers and firefighters the opportunity to purchase a home with zero down payment

This partnership, along with the designated lender, make available, to eligible police and firefighters, this special home financing opportunity for purchase and refinance. The program offers, 100% first mortgage at fixed rate, upfront immediate pre-approval for eligible police and firefighters. There are no income limitations and you do not need to be a first time buyer. For pre-approval or more information, please call Sue Cantin at (562) 398-2010.

Medical Deductible

During MOU negotiations in May-June 2000, we were told through Police

Relief that our medical premiums under the Blue Cross Prudent Buyer Plan were going to increase 24%. Additionally, the City was requiring the member to pay a $5 dollar co-pay for doctor's office visits before they would give any subsidy to offset the cost of medical premiums. under Blue Cross Prudent Buyer. A 24% increase in our medical premiums not acceptable as that would have absorbed our pay raise. The League was able to negotiate an additional subsidy to help offset the increase in the Blue Cross Plan. However, changes in the plan had to be made to reduce the projected increases. Police Relief met with Blue Cross on the changes and they were relayed to us to present to the membership. In making the changes, Police Relief and the League were able to reduce the family member's monthly contributions from $87.50 to $60.00, an approximate 30% reduction. To offset the additional cost of the $5 co-pay, the League and Police Relief agreed and told the membership that the member's deductible would only apply to medical procedures or hos-

to medical procedures or hospitalizations outside of the office visit. Here lies the problem. After January 1st of this year 1 have been notified by members and had it happen to my family, that our deductibles have applied to office visits. I contacted Police Relief, who told me that an appearably insurance companys? that apparently insurance companys' definitions of an office visit is going to the doctor's office and saying, "good morning." If any other procedure is done in the office, i.e., blood test, x-ray, etc., then the member's deductible kicks in. This is not acceptable! On February 2 2001, the League's Executive Board and Police Relief had a meeting to correct this problem. Based on this and a subsequent meeting, the League and Police Relief believe the problem has been corrected. If the member believes his/her deductible has been incorrectly applied to a doctor's office visit, please contact Police Relief at (213)531-2303 or (888)252-7721, for a resolution. Additionally, if the member is not satist-

Police Commission Meeting

The overall philosophy of those of us The overall philosophy of those of us who are interested in improving training is that training should have a purpose. First, find out what the training needs are. In other words, what are the problems that need to be addressed by training. Then, design training to meet those needs. And finally, equally distribute the resources to officers throughout the state. Based on Gordon Graham's research, there are three areas that get officers into trouble. areas that get officers into trouble.

- a. Use of Force both lethal and
- b. Emergency Vehicle Operations -
- c. Interpersonal Relations and Communications - mouth beefs

If those are the problem areas that officers get into trouble - whether the results are a loss of life as shown in the study below or in the personnel complaint process - these three areas account for almost all personnel complaints, injuries or details.

Job Task Analysis For Patrol Officers

A project to analyze the job of an entry level patrol officer was just completed. POST staff will continue to monitor trends in the police service and "continually in the police service and "continually reassess" the training needs of patrol officers and resultant modifications

Basic Recruit Course so as to meet those training needs

Law Enforcement Officers Killed and Assaulted in the Line of Duty (LEOKA)

POST has another on-going project which is designed to study and analyze the deaths of officers who were killed in the line of duty. The most recent part of the continuing study, covering the years 1995-1999, was just completed. It is interesting to note that the data shows 79 percent of all fatalities result from uses of force and/or motor vehicle accidents.

Perishable Skills Training Requirement

Directly connected to the Job Task Analysis and the LEOKA studies is a training requirement for patrol officers and supervisors. It is based on the theory of airsupervisors. It is based on the theory of air-line pilot training. They have regular, on-going training in how to handle critical necidents such as how to handle an engine blow out, massive wind shears, etc. There are specific incidents that we can identify and train for in order to home the skills of the most critical of all police functions, that of the natro officer. of the patrol officer.

This requirement addresses specific problems for officers. The following four item statement is taken directly from a POST staff report:

1. Without periodic refresher training and practice, major psychomotor skills

(driving, shooting and self defense/arrest methods) diminish over time.

- 2. Refresher training in these skills may reduce officer citizen injuries or deaths, internal investigations, or liability.
- Many California law enforcement agencies already recognize this training need and routinely provide it to their offi- cers.

  4. It is no coincidence that these core skills, when not periodically refreshed, frequently correlate to incidence of personnel complaints, officer injury, officer death, civilian injury, civilian death and resultant liability to law enforcement agencies. Accordingly, these four core skills were identified as lynch pins of safe and effective law enforcement operations.

  POST regulations have been modified

POST regulations have been modified "to require all regular and specialized [first line peace officers and first line supervisors) assigned to patrol, traffic, or investigation who routinely effect the physical arrest of criminal suspects to complete a minimum of 12 hours in specified perishable skills..." The specific requirements

- 1. Arrest and Control -- 4 hours
- Drive Training/Awareness of Drive
- Simulator -- 4 hours 3. Tactical Firearms or Force Options Simulator -- 4 hours
- 4. Communications (tactical and interpersonal) -- 2 hours

This training is specifically targeted at the areas where officers either get into trouble and get suspended and/or fired, or where they get injured or killed, Based on the LEOKA study mentioned above, 79 percent of all officer fatalities are attributable to the "perishable skills" areas ble to the "perishable skills" areas.

Finally, one of my main efforts as a POST Commissioner has been to redirect funds and other resources to this area.

LAPD has received a Driver Training Simulator, an expensive upgrade to the simulator, over a hundred thousand dollars in use of force training aids such as new mats, red-man suit, simulated weapons, etc.

Advisory Committee Appointment

Our friend Kevin Otto was appointed to the POST Advisory Board representing specialized officers. He is the VP of LA School Police Association.

Master Instructor Development Program

Begun in 1991, this program is one of the most costly programs with little concrete results. There are few graduates and a very high dropout rate. Many of the graduates leave their training assignments immediately upon graduation and value to the agency and to POST is minimal.

Trend to Train Civilians with POST Funds

There has been a trend to allocate POST training dollars to fund training for non-sworn personnel at the expense of sworn personnel. I have made it clear that no more programs should be started until the rankand-file officers are fully trained.

Just when you thought things were getting better somebody screws with the system. The story that I am about to tell is true only the names have not been changed to expose the guilty.

Your Defense Reps have been doing an outstanding job in representing you at Boards of Rights. They have been incredibly effective in investigating the cases before the Board of Rights starts. As a direct result they have been winning an incredible amount of Boards. This does however not endear them to the Department or Internal Affairs. We have also been fortunate enough to have several command staff officers with integrity willing to listen to the entire case and make a fair decision based upon the rules set up to protect your rights and get to the truth. With that in mind, several of those people have been made exempt from sitting on Boards of Rights, for various reasons, but the weakest reason of all was that this particular individual had a 1.28. know this is shocking to you but it's true, even the command staff gets 1.28's; it's just the outcome that is different from you in most cases.

One of our best Defense Reps was picking a Board for some officers and he had the Advocate "Hang" the Board This is one of your rights, and from this day forward I would strongly suggest that you assert this right. What this means is that the Advocate takes every command officer and hangs their name on a board and when all the names are taken out of the box and put on the board all the names should be covered. If they are not, something is wrong and we are all trained investigators so you should recognize this right away. In this particular case, one name-Captain Curreri was missing.

If you remember a couple of months ago I wrote about how Captains Curreri and Tatreau along with civilian Donna Wade had made comments about Perez's credibility. Curreri has received a 1.28 stemming from that incident, Tatreau was passed over again for promotion and Donna Wade has been "struck" from sitting on Boards of Rights almost every time her name comes up. All things that I predicted would happen have. But so what? How does that affect you. These three individuals are all people that played by the rules and made rulings based upon the evidence that was pre-sented. They did the job correctly and fairly. Incidentally, Captain Tatreau has been exempted from sitting on Boards of Rights as he is currently negotiating the command officers' contract. The League does not believe that they can exempt him or Captain Bonneau for these reasons and although we support them in their efforts to get a contract, not at the expense of our members.

Back to the story. The Defense Rep questioned where Captain Curreri's name was and the "Head" advocate Lt. Fabian Lizzaraga had the answer. The name was removed because he had a pending complaint and could no longer picked for Boards of Rights. be picked for Boards of Rights. Apparently it was a new policy that nobody except Lt. Lizzaraga knew about, and that included Captain Curreri. I spoke to Chief Gascon about this incident and he was rather vague on it but I believe that our side was on it but I believe that our side was crystal clear. If a command officer could not be picked for a Board of Rights if they had pending 1.28's, potentially all command officers could be exempt, especially those that are bad Board picks. The very next day Captain Curreri was put back in the pool of eli-gible command officers to be picked for Boards of Rights. I applaud Chief Gascon for his immediate attention to this issue and for taking time to listen

If you are still reading you should be asking yourself, why do they care? It's simple, it's a win at all cost thing for some people in Internal Affairs. Their motto is to "get to the truth of the mat-Unfortunately these are just words with no meaning to many in that Division. Don't get me wrong, I know a lot of good people working in Internal Affairs, but this incident was wrong and I believe it was worse than that, it was misconduct and it was dishonest. That being the case, it becomes a Brady issue. Remember we just want to get to the truth of the matter.

The Campaign Trail

We are very close to the April elections and some extremely important races will be decided at that time. Remember that we have two of your Directors running for City Council. The election of Ken Hillman and Dennis P. Zine is crucial to all of our futures. We have also endorsed Lea Purwin D'Agostino for City Attorney. You might ask yourself, why should I care about the City Attorney race? It's simple; the City Attorney directly impacts you when you are sued for doing your job. The City Attorney makes decisions as to the settlement of cases, and this in turn could impact the outcome of a personnel complaint. The current City Attorney has settled all kinds of cases arising out of the Perce Scandal and spent millions of taxpayer activities of the complete the c dollars without ever doing an investigation. You can bet if he is elected a Mayor, you will be the people payi those settlements in the next contrac Support those people that the League Support those people mat the League has endorsed, as they will directly impact your future. All three of the people need your help and I have said before but it needs to be said again. They need MONEY. I am not asking you to give an astronomical amount money; $5-$10 dollars from each of you would be a tremendous boost Remember that individually we are weak; collectively we are one of the most powerful groups of people in the City. Let's get behind our people in big way and make a difference in City government.

NOW," I like the headlines in the Daily News article dated, Tuesday, February 6, 2001. The question remains, is this a call to action or something less. My belief is that Mayor Riordan is at his wits end with the people who say why we can't and wonders where the people are who say; yes we can, how far and when. who say, yes we can, now far and when.
The firing of the Police Commission President, Gerald Chaleff was a bold step at the end of the Mayor's administration. To me this signals that the Mayor realizes that if bold steps are not taken immediately that deal with the morale of the Los Angeles Police Department we will be in serious trou-ble. Crime is on the rise, officers are leaving in alarming numbers, and the Department is unable to recruit new take in not allowing the Police Protective League to be a part of the reform effort. The Board of Directors could have assisted the city and the Department in enhancing morale and affecting crime.

I thank Mr. Chaleff for his years of service, although I fundamentally disagree with his reform efforts. We must now work to assist the Department and the Mayor in revamping the morale and well-being of our rank-and-file officers. Together we can bring about the kind of changes necessary to restore the luster, keep the citizens of Los Angeles safer, and enable our officers to do their job in

The first thing we need to do is reform the disciplinary system, to find a middle ground that doesn't make everyone a suspect. Police officers like anyone else, just want to work in a healthy environment, they want to do an already diffiment, they want to do an already diffi-cult job, and at the end of the day, know that the Department is going to back them up. I think this is also what the cit-izens of Los Angeles want and deserve, they know that a healthier police depart-ment enhances our ability to fight crime, and provide the kind of safety and secu-rity that is so important to our economy and well-being.

and well-being.

I attended a Police Commission subcommittee meeting yesterday with nowPresident, Raquelle de la Rocha, and Commissioner Warren Jackson. I have to say that I was impressed by the open dialogue, and the commitment of the Mayor's office to bring about fundamental change and fairness. The Department tal change and fairness. The Department is drafting a serious change in the disciplinary process that will come about fairly rapidly. To have a seat at the table from the start can bring about the kind of change we can help one another with. I am confident that change is near, and that fundamental fairness and common sense will be a part of that change.

enhance the pay and benefits of of our officers. Pension reform is critical in order to compete with other departments and the economy. We can no longer think that just because we are LAPD that recruitment will happen. Bob Baker, Cliff Ruff, and Mitzi Grasso have been working very hard on pension reform, and it is my belief that good things will happen. happen.

Third, some form of compressed work schedule must be accomplished, I call on the city to be honest, to please take into consideration the fact that a CWS will save the taxpayers millions, and enable police officers to have work schedules police officers to nave with schedules, that allow them to be more productive, yet attain more quality family time. There is a reason that every police agency in the county of Los Angeles except LAPD has CWS.

Fourth, in my opinion the consent decree is off base. The Protective League, if there is to be a consent decree, should be part of that process. Let's be honest, are the reforms talked about seally necessary and is everyone. about really necessary, and is everyor in leadership roles just going along because it's the political correct position to come from? At some point we have to stand up and fight for what is right. stand up and fight for what is right. Police officers are not against reform; they are against burdensome, unnecessary, costly, and punitive outside control. Everyone knows by now that the Perez incident is not a widespread corruption problem. Yes, we can do things differently, and we are, but let's be mindful of what is right for the Police Department, the officers, and the people of Los Angeles.

It is my belief that we will have mean ingful reform that addresses the issues that are essential to all of the hard-working dedicated men and women of our Department. We must remain positive in our approach, have patience, and under-stand that some times it is important to hit bottom before you can start the come back. My fellow Directors and I are working hard to get our message out, and to improve communication between all city leaders so that nothing gets in the way of results!

Thank you for your time.

District Attorney Rescinds "Brady" Policy

Back in November of last year, the League was joined by twenty one (21) other county police associations in filing a lawsuit in Superior Court to challenge the policies announced by former District Attorney Gil Garcetti in his Special Directive 00-01. Among other Special Directive 00-01. Among other things, this directive required county prosecutors to gather, investigate and disclose allegations of misconduct against any police officer who was or may be called to testify on behalf of the prosecution in a criminal case. As such, an officer could have been investigated by a receiver gather for he or she had. by a prosecutor even after he or she had been fully exonerated of any wrongdoing, or the charges found to be without merit by the employing police agency. The League and the other police associ-ations therefore sought judicial relief to prevent implementation of the new policy as it was proposed by Mr. Garcetti.

In a victory for the principle of equal justice for all, we are pleased that newly elected District Attorney Steve Cooley has rescinded Special Directive 00-01 issued by his predecessor. We welcomed this eminently sensible decision. Garcetti's special directive was worse than ridiculous, it was dangerous because it threatened to destroy the balance between police officers' constitu-tional and statutory rights and the rights of criminal defendants to a fair trial. That's why the League brought a lawsuit to challenge it.

While the District Attorney has rescinded this special directive, he has formed a task force to study "Brady" related issues and develop a new policy. Neither the League nor any of the other police organizations who joined our law-suit was invited to participate in this task force. Therefore, unless we can arrive at a mutually acceptable policy with the District Attorney, the League and the other police associations will have no other alternative but to continue to pursue our case in the courts.

The League will always support any measure that protects and asserts the measure that protects and asserts the right to a fair trial, but we will certainly not do so when such a measure tramples on other rights. Statutory mechanisms, such as the "Pitchess" motions found in the Evidence Code, already exist to ensure that criminal defendants have access to relevant information about an officer who is a material witness in a criminal case that might assist them in a trial. Fundamentally, we at the League strongly believe that it is wrong that allegations of misconduct against police officers, which may have been found baseless, could be disseminated without those concerned being given any chance to present their side of an incident and to present their side of an incident and protect the information in their personnel files. While we are greatly encouraged by the speed with which the new District Attorney has rejected one of Garcetti's final idiocy, we at the League will continue to be vigilant for the rights of rank-and-file police officers. We ask for nothing more than fair treatment under the law. Unfortunately, that can constitute the an unfull battle when sometimes be an uphill battle when some people seek to impose different standards of law on police officers than those that they would have imposed on

Attorneys Give Police Commission Bad Advice

The Police Commission's Rampart Independent Review Panel was com-posed of many attorneys in private practice who spent many hours at no charge reviewing the policies, procedures and operations of the LAPD. Their comprehensive report contained numerous rec-ommendations for consideration and adoption by the Police Commission. While concluding that many of the Panel's recommendations are valid and meritorious, we at the League strongly disagree with some of the findings and recommendations made in the chapter dealing with Officer Involved Shootings and Other Uses of Force

For instance, one recommendation states as follows:

"Criminal investigations of shootings and uses of force by LAPD officers should precede the related administrative investigations, and Lybarger admo-nitions should not be given until the criminal investigation has been completed" (5.2, Report at p.131)

The Panel's findings in support of this recommendation are extremely flawed and in our view represent real bad advice to the Police Commission. The Panel takes the view that if the Lybarger admonition is routinely delayed, most involved officers will be willing to give voluntary statement because they would want their stories heard. (By the way, if you believe this finding, I have a bridge over the San Francisco Bay for sale also )

Once again, in our view, this finding by the Panel is incredibly naive and certainly inconsistent with the legal advice that these private attorneys would be expected to give their clients. If these lawyers routinely allow their clients to lawyers routinely allow their clients to talk to the police in a criminal investiga-tion we have a serious question as to propriety of the legal representation that would be provided under those circum-stances and almost every criminal defense lawyer we know would disagree with them!

As so aptly stated by League panel attorney Michael P. Stone in his suggested protocol for lethal force investigations, the involved officers' decision to the histories against self, in the problem of the suggestion. invoke his/her right against self-incrim nation will likely constitute the single most profound development in the glob al view of the use of force incident. For example, that single decision removes the statements of the involved personnel who are targeted for prosecution instant. ly from the reach of the criminal justice system. While Lybarger compelled accounts based upon pain and penalty of insubordination are usable in an admin insubordination are usage in an admin-istrative context, and perhaps in a subse-quent civil action, "use immunity attaches to the statement precluding its use for any purpose in a subsequent criminal case, absent waiver. Here the officer's interests are bound to collide with all others, because it may well be in his or her interest to remain silent and not speak, when every other interest demands disclosure and revelation.

encourage officers to waive their rights and should not discourage them from exercising their rights to counsel and silence, in order to benefit the criminal fact-finding mission. Long after the department's interest in "getting to the truth of the matter" is satisfied, the offi-cer may be left "twisting in the wind" a the result of incriminating admission made at a time before he had counsel o could, in any way, appreciate the fact that his voluntary account of the use of force would later furnish a "link in the chain of evidence" called up by the prosecutor to argue for the officer's conviction. The involved officers are required to make the "called to be a conviction of the officer's are required to make the "called to be a conviction." the "public safety statement" in all cases but beyond that, they should never be encouraged or influenced to waive their Fifth Amendment rights. Commission must permit and allow for protection of these important individua officer civil rights.

The Police Commission should not

whom the bell tolls: it tolls for thee John Donne

It is the year 1996. You are barely off probation. The division you work in is inundated with criminal gangs and you nundated with criminal gangs and you work patrol. The Department has declared a "war on gangs." The Department has ordered "gang sweeps." You have been directed to "take back the streets" by your supervisors and upper management.

It is easy to believe that there is, in fact, a war. Even in your short time on the job, you have seen the terrible destruction on human beings visited by destruction on human beings visited by the gang bangers and their drive by shootings, robberies, rapes and dope dealing. Decent citizens have to remain inside in fear after dark, children have been killed and crippled by stray rounds as the gangs make war against each other, mothers watch their impression-able children brought into the gang ranks able children brought into the gang ranks by the easy money and the need to pro-tect themselves from rival gangs. In short, you support the Department's position that something has to be done to protect the public. You pass by no protect the public. You pass by no opportunity to catch a gang member dirty and get him off the street. You think that this is an important part of your job and you feel good after each

And there are many arrests. Most of your fellow officers feel the same way you do. When recognizable gang mem-bers congregate on the street, you and your fellow officers stop and talk to them. They look suspicious and you try to find out exactly what type of criminal activity they are up to. You have been trained to pat down gang members for officer safety and with the number of guns and knives recovered from gang members and their known propensity for violence, this seems like a valid life pre-senting idea. During these part downs serving idea. During these pat downs, many weapons are found, along with various types of narcotics, and numervarious types of hardeness, and hardeness ourse gang members hit jail assuring that, at least for a couple of days, no citizen will be shot by this gun or stabbed with that knife.

You are aware in a general way from the recruit training at the Academy about the laws of search and seizure, but there has been scan training since you hit the street. A gang member in a high crime area looking "hinky" is pretty much the standard for stopping and investigating what the gang member and his fellow gang member pals are doing. The Department wants intelligence, so often you make a field interview card or take. you make a field interview card, or take a photograph.

When you make an arrest, which is often, you tend to write a bare bones arrest report to get back on the street as fast as possible. You know that there are deputy district attorneys and deputy city attorneys assigned to the gang problem and you trust that they will be reviewing your arrests along with a long chain of supervisors. If you are doing something wrong, you expect that you will be told and trained in doing things a better way. The fine points of search and seizure cannot even be agreed upon by the members of the Supreme Court as reflected in their split decisions. You figure that you will just do your best and if an arrest has legal problems, the experts will either go to court or reject the case for filing. Most cases are filed and most of the Most cases are filed and most of the arrestees are convicted. In fact, you and your fellow officer's efforts have visible results. Gang crime plunges dramatically. You have taken back the streets. 19. You have taken back the steets. Citizens can walk to the store at night. The gangs have to do their dirty work someplace else instead of brazenly tak-ing over street corners. This is why you became a cop, to make a difference.

Fast Forward

It is the year 2001. You are waiting at your station for the arrival of the Internal Affairs investigators. They will not tell you why they want to talk to you, but it has something to do with one of your arrests. You have arranged to have your defense representative present from the Officer Representation Section. She tells you that she has been at several of these kinds of interviews. They usually arise out of letters from prison immates claiming everything from illegal searches to planting evidence in the hope of jumping on the Rafael Perez bandwagon and playing the get out of jail free card.
There is nothing to do, but wait.
The Internal Affairs investigators

arrive. They are all business. They present you with a set of reports from an arrest that you and your partner made four-and-a-half years ago. You can see that they have eight by ten blowups of the booking photo of the arrestee. A helicopter has taken aerial photographs of the scene of the arrest and they are placed on the table. You read the arrest report. Even though you wrote the report, you do not have an independent report, you do not have an independent memory of this arrest. It is like a hun-dred others. A gun recovered during a pat down. A trip to the station. A com-puter run that determines the suspect is puter run that determines the suspect is an ex-con and a felony booking. The arrest report is sparse and to the point. The suspect in the booking photograph is covered with tattoos and they, at least, look somewhat familiar. A little memory comes back to you, but not much. You had done the stop, pat down, and subsequent arrest scenario a hundred times.

The interview begins. You are read your Miranda Rights, You are Lybargered. your Miranda Rights. You are Lybargered.
The allegations against you are listed on a complaint form which you are allowed to read. You see that the same Department that sent you out to make war on the gang problem is now charging you with an illegal detention. You see that the same Department that told you to take back the streets is now charging you with an illegal arrest. You see that the Department that sanctioned thousands of similar arrests on gang members over a period of years is now charging you with an illegal search. You see that the Department that sanctioned thousands of similar arrests on gang members over a period of years is now charging you with an illegal search. You see that the Department whose supervisors and managers were lauded and promoted for you and your fellow officers successful efforts on the streets are now charging you with a conspiracy to commit charging you with a conspiracy to commit civil rights violations just so the statute of limitations can reach back to this fouryear-old arrest. You are stunned.

The questions flow rapidly. Why did you stop this suspect? What was your probable cause? Who got out of the car first? probable cause? Who got out of the car first? Who patted the suspect down first? What did you say? What did you partner say? What did the gang member say? The only answer you have is the report in front of you. You do not remember any details independently, You answer truthfully, but you have to say "I don't remember" so many times

Three Strikes and You're Out Chief Parks!

It's the bottom of the 9th. Bases are loaded. Bernie is at bat. It's three balls and two strikes. The pitcher anxiously stands on the mound, waiting to throw the final pitch, which just might end the game. The batter is sweating, his mind is racing, his heart is pounding. The pitch is thrown, "STEELEEERIKE" is called. The game's over.

Half an hour later, only the batter is still on the field. Everyone else has left the stadium. The batter knows it's over. He knows he should be showering, packing up and leaving the ballpark, but he just ean't leave. He knows it's over.

Our Chief needs to finally realize that it's over. His reign of terror has rendered him incapable of further leadership. Will someone PLEASE escort him from the field!

How DID he achieve three strikes?

STEEEERIKE ONE: He alienated his rank and file. He implemented discipline procedures that were illogical, unfair, and draconian. So his officers began to leave, in droves. Morale plummeted, academy classes couldn't be filled, and officers began not only fearing for the life of the residents, but for their own futures. They continue to leave the department. It has nothing to do with the economy. It has everything to do with leadership.

STEERIKE TWO: He alienated the citizens. He fired the fatal bullet into community policing, once again erecting the wall that separated the department from the community. So his citizens began to disengage from working with the department (after all, who were they supposed to call'). And the department began to disengage from the citizens (after all, they had paperwork to do). Community policing died a quiet death, day by day. And with the downfall of the partnership, and the internal disaster Rampart presented, residents became fearful once again. The hoodlums took to the streets while citizens took to their homes. Daily, the city became a more dangerous place to live, so homes began going on the market.

STEERIKE THREE: He alienated the federal government, the very same entity that offered help, their offer rejected. "We can handle things locally. We don't need ANY help." Feds read the newspapers too: crime went up, morale went down, arrests went down, deployment went down, citizen comfort level plummeted." So the federal government said, "Okay, enough is enough." And the feds saw the sheriffs doing everything right—their academy classes busting at the seams, their complaints dropping, their morale elevated, their leadership talking about improving the department, working with the community, and treating all fairly and justly. And the Chief said, "We're doing just fine," we need no improvement, we need no guidance, we need nothing from anyone other than me. I AM THE BEST!! And in the end the city had no choice but to cave to federal oversight.

Three strikes, and you're out, Mr. Chief. There's no one left for you to alienate. There's no one left for YOU to anger. There's no one left for YOU to lead. You've lost your best officers, you've lost your most involved citizens, and now you've lost the support of the federal government.

Turn in your badge. Turn in your gun. Take pride that you single-handedly took a department once considered the best and the brightest and turned it into a laughing stock. You took a very active community and turned it into your worst nightmare, and you took the federal government to the brink of SUING the city.

The ball game is over. The fat lady has sung. The force has spoken, the citizens have spoken, and now the federal government has spoken.

Three strikes and YOU'RE out

Ellen Bagelman President, Lake Balboa Neighborhood Association

To: Daily News

This is in response to your "Mayor: Fix LAPD Now" article published today. I got a good laugh from the mayor's lat-est solution to this serious problem. Everyone knows where the problem is, and it is NOT at the Police Commission. It's at Parker Center, where the Chief (I use the term loosely) terrorizes his rank d file daily. The problem with LAPD is NOT low morale, a drop in arrests, a decreasing force, an increase in crime these are symptoms of the root cause the man who presides over the department. Until he is removed from his day job, LAPD will continue to deteriorate, citizens will continue to have less and less faith in their protectors, and the criminals will feel more and more comfortable on the streets pursuing their agenda. It's truly time to stop, look at the situation honestly, and do what is right get a real chief of police in Los Angeles, and do it NOW.

Ellen Bagelman President, Lake Balboa Neighborhood Assn.

Dear Editor:

I spent nearly half of my life as a member of the Los Angeles Police Department. One of the proudest days of my life was when I was sworn in on August 6, 1962. Until my retirement on service pension in May, 1988, I was proud to tell anyone who would listen that I was a member of the LAPD. I'm STILL proud. Despite everything that has happened and every distorted news story about what has happened, I know in my heart that the vast majority of police officers on the Department are more honest, honorable, courageous and just downright decent than most of the people they serve.

I watched in horror as the news media played "that beating" at least a thousand times. Critics of the Department used that incident and the resultant fall out to justify their criticism of the way LAPD does its job. The other nine thousand or so Los Angeles police officers just went about their business, trying to make streets, homes and businesses safe for people to be in. The Christopher Commission issued a report that contained recommendations of how to "reform" the Department. An ill-conceived measure was passed by the voters which attacked the heart of what had made LAPD great. We had the fewest per capita police officers of any major city in the nation and yet consistently maintained the lowest part-one crime rate of any of those cities.

We did that by being proactive. It something looked suspicious, we checked it out. If someone fit the description of a wanted crime suspect, we stopped them and checked them out. That was BEFORE "the beating." Since the overreaction to that event, measures have been put into place which have had a definite chilling effect on proactive police work. The flood of personnel complaints and civil suits, which have complaints and civil suits, which have complaints and civil suits, which have overwhelmed the department since 1992 have had disastrous effects on the Department and more importantly on the people who depend on the Department to protect their lives and property. Police officers are willing on a daily basis to place their lives on the line. The men and women of the Los Angeles Police Department will not hesitate to go into harm's way to protect and serve. What they will hesitate to do, however, is to place their livelihood and family's financial welfare in harm's way.

Somehow, the misdeeds of a few have been depicted as indicative of the conduct of the many and every officer on the Department feels themselves under attack. When unsubstantiated complaints go into an officer's personnel file and every promotional opportunity or desirable assignment application is tainted by that record, any reasonable officer has to think twice about being very proactive.

Crime is up. Arrests are down. Duh! Stop looking to "reform" police officers who are not in need of being reformed. Lead by example. Support officers and recognize they have to make split second decisions. With pre-employment screening, training and positive supervision, these officers will make the right decision almost every time. If they think they face loss of career and/or even prison if they make an honest mistake, look for more of the same. Crime up, arrests down. Los Angeles police officers deserve leadership and support.

She was under the command of Captains William Cobb, Jerry Bova, W. O. Gartland, and Jim Tatreau. She sends a special thanks to Captain Jim Tatreau for making her stay a memorable one and ensuring that his support staff be a part of the "RHD family." Little did she know that she would be working for Tatreau at the end of her career with LAPD. Chris met Captain Tatreau in 1970 when he worked Accident Investigation Division and captain fatteat in 1970 when ne worked Accident Investigation Division and again in 1973 at Hollenbeck Division. She mentioned that Tatreau has main-tained a pleasing and earing personality throughout the years.

While assigned to Major Crimes Section, Chris derived great pleasure working with Ed Henderson and some of which will be denderson and some of the finest detectives on the Department. She enjoyed the camaraderie and being part of the "RHD family" for the past 15 years. Over 20 fallen police officer cases were handled during her time at RHD. There was always an RHD case aired on the news involving an OIS, robbery, bank robbery, rape or a murder, in which bank roboty; rape of a murret, in which she recognized one of RHD's detectives. Chris stated, "They have such a tremen-dous tenacity in solving and working these cases that I can truly say it has been an honor to work closely with them. There is so much history at RHD as you can see when you walk into the administrative office and observe the photographs displayed on the walls adjacent to the interview room where Charles Manson, Richard Ramirez and O. J. Simpson, just to name a few, were interviewed."

"I would like to especially thank the past as well as the present RHD detectives, including Captain Gartland for always being there and the good times we have all had and sharing of lives throughout the years. Having both worked in RHD, Bud and I have some cherished friendships that have developed over the years." oped over the years

Chris and Bud will celebrate a going away/retirement cocktail party at the Academy Lounge, March 29th at 1630 hours. Please stop by and join us for appetizers and drinks.

Dear Mayor Riordan,

Dear Mayor Riordan,
You were recently quoted in an article in the Metro section of The Los Angeles Times as saying, "I will not rest until the so-called experts (of The Los Angeles Police Department), stop debating and start acting on the issues of morale, recruitment, and community policing."
Mayor Riordan, just as we patrol officers of the Los Angeles Police Department, thought it couldn't get any worse. I would like to bring to your attention something that is currently taking place at Central Division. In the next few days, in order to get officers to perform, all in order to get officers to perform, all patrol officers (all watches) will be receiving comment cards every month. We were informed that some of these comment cards will be negative and some will be positive. However, we know this is management's way of "pisknow this is managements way or pis-tiol whipping" us until we perform to their standards. We are told that this order is coming down from Central Bureau. I can tell you by talking to my fellow officers that this single act is only going to further lower morale.

Management seems to forget why the whole Rampart incident happened. According to Rafael Perez, he wanted to impress his supervisors with high numbers. What happened to quality work? Now it is just give everyone a ticket. Supervisors are already overburdened Supervisors are already overburdened with paperwork and are not able to adequately supervise the officers, an issue brought up in the Board of Inquiry. If you look at the statistics of Central Division and the statistics of all the other divisions, the numbers of arrests and citations are dropping every month, leading to higher crime rates; low morale leads to low productivity.

Mayor Riordan, if you are sincere in your statement that you want to improve morale, you can show Central Division Patrol Officers by looking into this matter. I realize not one change will turn us around, but it is a start. Mayor Riordan, if you want to find out what is going on with morale, and a decrease in arrests and higher crime rates, do not go to management. I, urge you to come to every division and speak with your patrol officers. We are the ones who know the answers and have the solutions. Thank you for your time. Mayor Riordan, if you are sincere in Thank you for your time

From a Central Patrol Officer

New IRS Publication 502 on Deductible Medical Expenses

The IRS recently released an updated Publication 502 for use in preparing individual income tax returns for the year 2000. Publication 502 provides guidance on deductible medical expenses are se for tax purposes. (These expenses are often referred to as "Section 213 expenses" for the applicable section of the Internal Revenue Code that permits the deduction.) Cafeteria plan administrators often refer to IRS Publication 502 to determine which health care expenses they will consider eligible for reimbursement under a health flexible spending account ("health FSA") program. However, health insurance premiums and long term care expenses are not reimbursable expenses under a health FSA program, even though they are "Section 213 expenses" and may be deductible for income tax purposes (if the individual tiemizes deductions, and unreimbursed medical expenses exceed 7.5% of the taxpayer's adjusted gross income).

New Deductible Expenses

The new Publication 502 includes some noteworthy additions to the list of deductible medical expenses, including the following:

 Medical Conferences. Amounts paid for admission and transportation to a medical conference if the conference concerns the chronic illness of the taxpayer, his/her spouse, or his/her dependent.

 Laser Eye Surgery. Amounts paid for surgery to improve vision, such as radial keratotomy or laser eye surgery, if performed primarily to improve the function of the eye. Fertility Enhancements. Amounts paid for certain procedures to overcome an inability to have children, such as in vitro fertilization or reversal of a prior operation such as vasectomy.

Weight –Loss Programs. Amounts

 paid for a weight-loss program undertak en at a physician's direction to treat as existing disease (such as heart disease) but not merely to promote the general well-being of the taxpayer.

that you sound evasive. You wish your report had been more detailed, but those were fast times and leisurely report writing was not the order of the day.

Finally, the interview is over. The Internal Affairs investigators leave.

"What happens now?" you ask your

"Well, if your captain believes by a preponderance of the evidence that you are guilty of any of those charges, you will be sent to a Board of Rights. If the Board finds by a preponderance of the evidence that you are guilty of any of those charges, you will be fired."

"What is a preponderance of the evidence?" you ask.

"A fifty percent chance that the charge is true plus the weight of a feather." your representative replies. "That's what your job hangs on." she says. "Sucks, doesn't it?"

"How do I prove something didn't happen over four years ago at an arrest that I can just barely remember? How can something as technical and changing as search and seizure rules be used as the basis for taking away my career?" you cry. "It's not fair."

The representative is sympathetic, but has seen this many times before. "Fair has nothing to do with it. It's politics. The winds have changed. The dead bodies of the victims of gang members have been forgotten. Rafael Perez' allegations have to be answered with administrative executions so the Department can show the Los Angeles Times that the problems have been solved." The representative pats your hand. "Department managers don't get executed. The troops get that assignment. You were cannon fodder back in 1996 and you are cannon fodder now. You just didn't know it."

The defense representative starts down the hall out of the station on the way to her next interview. She calls over her shoulder. "It's not over yet. There are still decent people around in management positions with some backbone that will take a hard look at the evidence before throwing you over the ramparts. We win about twenty-five percent of the Boards of Rights."

Still, there is little comfort in her words. You don't like the odds.

Increasing the Odds

You have little or no control over the winds of politics, but you can do a couple of things to increase your chances of surviving the inevitable allegations made by criminals bent on escaping punishment for their crimes.

The first thing is knowledge of the principles of search and seizure. The Department has done little to help you in this area over the years. There are volumes written by legal scholars on the subject and every term the California and United States supreme courts modifies you appear to the current rules. You do not want to have to debate with Internal Affairs over what is a legal detention or search and what is not. What you want is a written reliable source that you can point at to justify every action you took. One good source is the California Peace Officers Legal Sourcebook. The Office of the Attorney General publishes this book and it is pretty hard for anyone to tell the top cop in the state that his interpretation of the law is incorrect. Even if it is, you are entitled to rely on it.

Here are some quotes from this source on typical gang investigation related search and seizure. If these quotes are foreign to you, or worse yet, in opposition to what you currently believe is the law on search and seizure, you need to run, not walk, to this book before you place your career in the hands of some criminal.

"You have no authority to conduct any kind of a search during a consensual encounter unless, of course, the person gives you voluntary consent...In other words, most any non-consensual search is going to require "probable cause."

And even a limited search for weapons (a patdown or frisk)--which will turn the consensual encounter into a detention is not legal unless you have specific facts or information making it reasonable for you to suspect that the person may be armed or dangerous." Section 2.6d

"In order for an investigative stop or detention to be valid, you must have a "reasonable suspicion" that: (1) criminal activity may be afoot; and (2) the person you are about to detain is connected with that possible criminal activity." Section 2.8

"Certain factors, such as "nighttime" and "high crime" or "high narcotics" area, will not suffice, alone, to justify a detention." Section 2.10b

"Actually detaining someone" (as opposed to obtaining their voluntary cooperation) for the purpose of obtaining information about them, or photographing them, is illegal unless you have a specific basis for believing the person is involved in criminal activity." Section 2.18b

If the Department is serious about making personnel complaints based on violations of the rules of search and seizure, this publication should be passed out to everyone right along with the LAPD manual. The copies of the Sourcebook currently in many divisions are all too often out of date or impossible to find. You can subscribe to the Sourcebook yourself or get an electronic version at Copware (805) 578-6800.

But knowing the law is only the first part of the problem. You must use in Detailed arrest reports containing all of your search and seizure factors are essential. The days of the short arrest report are over. If you hope to surve that interview from Internal Affairs in the year 2005 for the arrest you make tomorrow, you need to record details. The more you write, the less you have to remember. Remember, under the current 1.28 system, you not only have to be perfect, you have to be able to prove you were perfect, even as far as five year out.

Some Good News

As I write this, some changes may be on the horizon. Mayor Riordan is extremely concerned over the attrition rate on LAPD and is demanding action I attended a meeting with Police Commissioners Jackson and de la Rocha along with Joe Gunn, League Director Repovich, the commanding officers of Internal Affairs Group and committee members. Jackson and de la Rocha were very aware that the 1.28 system was a major factor in the low morale of LAPD officers and were dedicated to changing it for the better. The League has been invited to participate in the process. We will and I will keep you informed of the progress.

Be legally careful out there.

Judge Bascue praised newly appointed Judge Segal as a reflection of the highest standards in the legal community and as Sheriff Lee Baca also spoke and said that the appointment of Judge Segal is a "victory for America" because just as law enforcement officials "meet justice face-to-face" every day, judges must "sit at the helm of the judicial process" and make decisions just like law enforcement officers that ensures the integrity of our social system. "We define our humanity," Sheriff Baca said, "by what happens in our courts of justice.

Harbor Area's Unique Approach to Violent Crime Reduction

by Capt. Paul Kim and Sqt. Vic Dennis

"Taking it to the Streets"

As a longtime San Pedro resident, Don Taylor has witnessed significant changes in his neighborhood. Unfortunately, not all of the changes have been for the better. On a sunny and clear Saturday morning last January, Mr. Taylor stood at the corner of 10th and Centre Streets and gazed upon a sea of community mem-

The first of these community block The first of these community block parties occurred on Dec. 2, 2000, following two homicides along 204th Street. The event was held at the intersection of 204th Street and Harvard, and was organized jointly by Harbor Area.

Community Relations Office and Problem-Solving Team. It featured local community organizations and local enter-tainers. The event had a moderate turnout, but most importantly, it was a start

The goal is to bring the police, community and government resources directly to violent crime locations. It is in many of these troubled areas that community members are often afraid to communicate with what they may perceive to be blue-suited "robots."

A month later, on January 20, 2001, the focus shifted to San Pedro. The Shipps Inn Hotel, located at 10th Street and Centre Street, has long been an Achilles heel to local residents and Harbor Area officers. Narcotics and gang activity, coupled with recent homi-cides, brought unwanted notoriety to this portion of San Pedro.

These problems prompted some Harbor Area officers to openly voice concerns about the prospects of a community event held at this location. Nevertheless, on January 20, 2001, at 1000 hours, music began to play, booths opened, and curious local residents left their homes to check out the festivities.

Two local radio stations—the BEAT, 100.3 FM, and MEGA, 92.3 FM, set up shop, distributed giveaways and played music. The Workforce Investment Network (WIN) provided career guidance information while the San Pedro Free Clinic provided health services information. To address gang issues, the Gang Alternatives Program (GAP) stressed the importance of eradicating existing gangs and keeping prospective young people from gang activity through their theme: "Never have never will."

Several Department entities were also represented. Among them were Communications Division, who shared educational materials about ways in which community members can communicate better when reporting crimes, and the Recruitment Unit, who spoke with those present in an effort to identify potential recruits. According to Recruitment Officer Allynn Simmons, the Recruitment Section recognizes the value of hiring people who live in Los Angeles. "People who live in this city have a vested interest in making things better.

Harbor Area's Explorer Scouts got into the act as they helped serve hot dogs and drinks. They also canvassed the neighborhood, door knocking the homes of local residents to invite them to parof local residents to invite them to par-ticipate in the block party. It is also hoped that the Explorers' participation will encourage young people to consider joining the Explorer Program. While the food, music and community representation is significant, perhaps the most important aspect of these events is the opportunity for com-munity members and their officers to simply talk. Officers also take the opportunity to distribute Community Action Network (CAN) brochures. The brochures encourage citizens to provide information about violent crimes via phone calls to a 24-hour hotline or through the mail via the brochure. One of the anticipated byproducts of these events is that people may be more willing to share information or provide clues about violent crimes. Harbor Area has received positive responses from the community members resulting in violent suspect identifications

One Department member who was "clued in" and present at both the 204th Street and San Pedro events was Lt. Fred Booker, the Officer-in-Charge of the Community Relations Section. It was evident to this Department veteran that these events are gaining momentum. "I see 100 percent improvement from the last (204th Street). I see vendors and business leaders. This event was clearly well marketed," he proclaimed as he looked out upon the crowd. Lt. Booker believes that neighborhood block parties offer great potential for outreach and educational opportunities. He also opportunities. He also stressed that his officers can assist with these events by providing educational pamphlets, circular and various "give-

In addition to the block parties, Harbor Area has already conducted

"Stop the Violence" town hall meetings mostly in the Wilmington community. These meetings have been held in churches, school auditoriums and parks. Interestingly, one of these meetings was conducted, primarily, in Speci even conducted primarily in Spanish with English translation.

Town hall meetings are by no means a new concept. The Los Angeles Police Department has utilized the town half meeting for years. More recently, the Department has seen a proliferation of these meetings through Semi-Annual these meetings through Semi-Annua Basic Car Meetings and Area Meetings Unfortunately, what frequently occurs in participation by the same groups of more active citizens. The block parties are designed to broaden the participation by many who would not otherwise pa ticipate in these more traditional forum

As the San Pedro block party conclus ed, many of the officers who had earlie voiced skepticism later admitted hevent was a good idea. Some were reminded that within the boundaries of even the most crime-riddled neighbor hoods live many concerned, law-abidin community members

Carl Tank, one of Harbor Area's mos dedicated volunteers, quickly formed his own conclusion about the block party in San Pedro. "It's a really good opportunity to get the police, the community and volunteers together." In fact, it was team of volunteers composed of officers. Explorers and representatives from the Beacon House, a licensed long-term re-idential substance abuse facility. who gathered early that January morning to clean up the immediate area in prepara-tion of the event.

The mission to "clean up" violent crime has spread beyond town hall meetings and block parties. Harbor Area has established three work teams, again under the "Stop the Violence" theme: the Criminal Justice Team, Government/Community Team and the Youth/Schools Team. They represent another important ingredient in the recipe to gain community/government cooperation and support. These teams meet independently to identify and solve problems that sometimes extend beyond the Department's resources.

With the Department's resources becoming increasingly scarce, Harbot Area is finding that the only limit to creative problem solving is the imagination. By focusing on the resources we do have, Harbor Area is realizing that we do not have to settle for the status quo. For now, Harbor Area's approach to stopping the violence will continue to include reaching out and taking it to the streets

bers, both children and adults, and police officers, and he did so with a smile. "This is a very positive event. It's something really different." The positive event about which he referred was the second in what has become a series of commu-nity block parties orchestrated by Harbor

Long considered a unique division with unique problems and assets, Harbor Area recently began to experience an alarming rise in violent gang and hate crimes, particularly in the Harbor Gateway and San Pedro communities. These crimes made clear the need for a new and nontraditional approach.

Borne of the desire to reach out to the community and "think outside the box," came the "Stop the Violence" theme. theme. Community block parties, traditional

Where Are Our Leaders?

by Sgt. Robert Lisenby Training Division

As a life member of the U.S. Naval Institute, I frequently read articles in their publication, Proceedings, which show common issues and problems experienced by the military services and law enforcement. In the January 2001. law enforceme ent. In the January, 2001 Proceedings, Capt. James F. Kelly, Jr. U.S. Navy (retired), discusses ways for organizations to identify leaders. In his article "In Search of Real Leaders, Article In Search of Real Leaders, Kelly recognizes that to meet the challenges of future naval service, like the challenges of law enforcement, the organization must develop a way to recognize people who can lead. He provides some characteristics of leadership that can be used to help identify leaders in the Navy, or any other organization, including the Los Angeles Police Department. The following excerpt from Capt. Kelly's article may provide some guidance to those who would seek to identify our Department's current and future leaders.

Identify Leadership

One is not a leader by virtue of rank, nor does one inherit the "mantle of leadership" merely by assuming command or other positions of authority. To be a leader, one must practice leadership behaviors:

Empathize with followers. Leaders care about their people and their concerns. They want to know what makes their people tick, and they feel a responsibility for their people. sibility for their well being

Plan for the long term. Leaders set goals and objectives to be measured over a longer timeline than just their own tours of duty. They put long-term progress ahead of short-term gains and ersonal recognition.

Explore alternatives. Leaders invite and debate. They encourage a "devil's advocate" position. They examine as many scenarios and possibilities as time and circumstances permit.

Explore change. Leaders are dynamic individuals, unafraid of new ideas.

Address the needs of followers.
Leaders may not always be able to put people first, but they consider the impact of every decision and action on their followers. They understand that to succeed they need the support of their followers. and they invariably put their troops' well being ahead of their own.

Be comfortable with stress. Leaders view conflict as an opportunity and capitalize on adversity to progress toward goals. They do not hesitate to take risks when circumstances warrant.

Have vision. Leaders have a plan for the long-term success of the organiza-tion and the people they lead.

Since I began my career in the Department, I have worked with and for a number of leaders who had many of the above qualities. Unfortunately, they were not always the ones who were rec-ognized for advancement.

Next month I will continue with some additional thoughts from Capt. Kelly about the need for organizations to purge

Parker Dodges a Bullet

Officer Dennis J. DeNoi William H. Parker Los Angeles Police Foundation

This month's article for the William H. Parker Los Angeles Police Foundation will highlight the professional biography of the late Chief William H. Parker.

William H. Parker joined the LAPD on August 8, 1927. He immediately set high personal and professional goals. By the time World War II started, Bill Parker had earned a law degree and attained the rank of Captain within the Los Angeles Police Department. He had completed 15 years on the job and was the Officer in Charge of the Accident Prevention Bureau when he volunteered for overseas duty with the U.S. Army's Government Branch. The Government Branch was a highly specialized section of the army that was made up of civil origineers (specialists in government affairs brought in from the public sector and appointed commissioned officers). Captain Parker was accepted as both a law enforcement and traffic expert. He was commissioned a 1st Lieutenant on April 13, 1943 and with only a few months of training, found himself in the middle of the European Theater of Operation.

On July 19, 1944, Lieutenant Parker was wounded in action when he was hit just above his right eye by a glancing machine gun round fired from a Naziplane. Lieutenant Parker was hospitalized for a few days before returning to full duty. Lieutenant Parker was awarded the Purple Heart medal for wounds resulting from the opposing armed forces. Parker was promoted to the rank of army Captain on March 16, 1945. While in the army, Captain Parker served his country in many war forn countries such as Africa, Italy, Sardinia, Great Britain, France, Germany and Austria. He was responsible for the development of the "Police and Prisons Plan" for the European invasion. He was also a key figure in the development of a democratic police system for the newly U.S. occupied cities of Munich and Frankfurt, Germany.

Captain Parker was recognized by both the French and Italian governments with prestigious awards; the French Croix de Guerre with Silver Star and the Italian Star of Solidarity. Captain Parker's other awards include; the European Campaign Medal, the World War II Victory Medal and the Army Occupation Service Medal.

Captain Parker felt he had accomplished what he had set out to in the wartime army and was now eager to return to the police service. He requested a discharge from military service upon his return to the United States. He was honorably discharged on November 18, 1945 from the United States Army. Captain Parker wasted no time resuming his career with the Los Angeles Police Department. Parker was promoted to Police Inspector (equivalent to today's Commander) on August 1, 1947. Parker was promoted to Emergency Deputy Chief of Police on November 2, 1949. Shortly thereafter, Chief Parker was selected to succeed interim Chief William A. Worton, a retired Marine

Major General, and lead the newly "corruption-free" Department into the second half of the 20th century. Chief Worton was brought in by Mayor Fletcher Bowron to clean house after the vice corruption scandal involving gambling king pin Mickey Cohen. Chief Parker was selected for Chief of Police over his opponent, Thad Brown, only after one of the stiffest races for Chief in the history of the Los Angeles Police Department.

Chief Parker made the following pledge shortly after taking his oath of Chief not only passed this test, but excelled, as he did for the many challenges that the City of Los Angeles presented him over the next 16 years that he served as its Chief. On Saturday night, July 16, 1966, Chief Parker had just finished a speech to the 2nd Marine Division Association and received a standing ovation from the receiptive audience. The Chief walked back to his seat and collapsed from a massive hear attack. Parker's community support was so strong that the Parker Foundation was created and the Police Administration.

We are dedicated to the professional advancement of the Los Angeles Police Department by providing enhanced opportunities for training, education and equipment to the proud men and women of the LAPD.

Civil service regulations dictated that Chief Parker pass a six-month probationary period. It's safe to say that the Building was renamed in his honor Deputy Chief Thad Brown, who held the rank of Deputy Chief for over 20 years finally filled the position of Interin Chief until February 1967.

Good Advice

Recently, around the country, an inordinate number of police officer involved shootings have taken place. As a result, several suspects have been fatally injured. Newspapers in the area, quoting local "community activists," have editorialized that, with all these shootings by police, "any citizen" could find himself dodging police bullets, for no apparent reason at all!

Responding to the newspaper editorial, a Los Angeles Deputy District Attorney, who is obviously community minded, submitted a five-point plan. The plan is designed to assist citizens, who might otherwise to randomly shot by police, in staying out of the path of police bullets.

The newspaper never printed it, but I thought you might appreciate it, even if they didn't

I've devised a five-point plan to help citizens avoid being shot by police. This plan may not prevent all shootings, but very few will take place when the plan is rigorously adhered to. So, here are the rules:

DON'T COMMIT VIOLENT CRIMES. It seems elementary, but this rule is lost on many. They do the crime, get shot, and then wonder how it could possibly happen. They whine that it is so unfair. Well, Slick, violent crime, like jumping in front of moving cars, is just a high risk occupation, and, in case you missed it, committing violent crime makes police officers think you might not be a good person.

If you ignore rule No. 1, and the police confront you, DON'T RUN AWAY FROM THEM. I know it's hard to believe, but that may make them think you're guilty of something. Hiding in bushes or closets makes some cops (mostly older ones) very nervous. They might even foolishly conclude that you're up to no good!

If you disregard rules 1 and 2, and the cops catch up with you anyway and inform you that you are under arrest, DON'T MAKE FAST MOVEMENTS WITH YOUR HANDS. I know it sounds silly, but grabbing a shiny beer can, a dark-colored wallet, or one of those snazzy and real-looking replica guns may make police officers mistakenly believe that you are about to hurt them.

If you disregard rules 1, 2, and 3, and manage to get what looks like a deady weapon into your hands, DON'T POINT IT AT THE COPS. We all know that you're basically a nice person, but that may be lost on the police officers confronting you. In their paranoia, they may even believe they need to protect themselves.

If you disregard rules 1, 2, 3, and 4, DON'T BE ASTONISHED IF THE COPS DO NOT INSTANTLY TURN INTO YOUR PERSONAL CONFIDANTE. They may be too preoccupied to realize that you're normally a splendid person and that you're just having a bad day. They may be too preoccupied to see that when you point a weapon at them in a threatening manner, it is just your way of crying out for help. We both know that the whole problem can be traced to the fact that your mother didn't breast feed you, but some police officers are so cynical they just don't see it. So, there you have it. If you really apply yourself and obey even some of the rules listed above, I bet you'll avoid the vast majority of police gunfire.

NAPO Files Brief to Protect Police Against Frivolous Civil Cases for Making Arrests

Washington, D.C.—On Monday, January 8th, the National Association of Police Organizations, Inc. (NAPO), representing 4,000 law enforcement organizations with over 228,000 sworn officers and its affiliate, the National Law Enforcement Officers' Rights Center, filed an amicus curiue brief with the U.S. Supreme Court in Saucier v. Katz et al., no. 97-1977. The brief supports military police officer Donald Saucier and law enforcement officers everywhere who may be unfairly forced to stand trial whenever they are alleged to have used excessive force, even if the force appeared reasonable and lawful to the officers at the time. NAPO urged the Court to uphold qualified immunity for police officers, as a defense against being sued, whenever they reasonably believe that minimal or other lawful force is justified to arrest or restrain suspects or prevent public disturbances.

Summary of the Facts and Proceedings

Respondent Elliot Katz's claim of excessive force arose out of his arrest at the Presidio military base in San Francisco, during a September, 1994, eremony in connection with the conversion of the Presidio to a National Park. Although display of political banners on military bases is prohibited, Respondent Elliot Katz stood up during Vice President Gore's speech, walked to a barrier separating the officials from the audience, and then unfurled a large baner reading: "Please Keep Animal Torture Out of Our National Parks," protesting alleged animal experimentation at the Army hospital in the Presidio.

As Katz unfurled the banner, Officer

As Katz unfurled the banner, Officer Saucier and Sgt. Steven Parker, both military policemen, approached Katz quickly. These officers each took one of Respondent's arms and quickly removed him from the seating area. According to Katz (during discovery), they "started sort of picking me up and kind of walking me out, kind of like very hurriedly." Respondent claims that he was then "shoved" into a military police van located nearby. While Respondent claims that he nearly fell headlong all the way into the van and was almost injured, he was not injured because he caught himself in time. After a brief detention at a military police station, Respondent was released. Respondent's arrest was broadcast, and a videotape of the relevant portion was submitted to the court.

Katz brought this action against Officer Saucier and other officials, alleging that the officers used unconstitutionally excessive force to arrest him.
The trial court denied Saucier's motion for summary judgment on qualified immunity grounds. The Ninth Circuit agreed with the trial court in Katz v. United States, et al., 194 F.3d962 (1999), and ruled that the reasonableness standard to determine the merits of Katz's excessive force claim was identical to the reasonableness test for the officer's qualified immunity defense, in blatant misinterpretation of a contrary Supreme Court decision (Anderson v. Creighton). If the Supreme Court does not reverse this lower court decision, then the qualified immunity defense against being sued will effectively become unavailable before trial to law enforcement officers in many, if not most, cases alleging excessive forcethwarting the immunity's purpose—and officers will be routinely forced to stand trial. Also, even after trial, the decision on qualified immunity will depend upon a jury's determination on liability (i.e., whether there was a violation of the Constitution). The Ninth Circuit also rejected Saucier's assertion that the "amount of force used in arresting Katz was so minimal that it was per se reasonable" to grant him qualified immunity, and the court ruled—incredibly, we believe—that, "... no reasonable officer could have believed that the amount of force used was lawful."

Summary of NAPO's Main Points

This decision seriously circumvents and undermines the important public interests served by qualified immunity. Qualified immunity protects law enforcement officers and other public employees from the expense and vexation of protracted litigation, possible damages, and from the chilling effect of such upon the excercise of their responsibilities. The doctrine does this presponsibilities he doctrine does this processing out early in the litigation obviously frivolous cases and those cases where the officer reasonably believed that the force that he or she used was lawful under the circumstances and in light of current Fourth Amendment law. In diligently and reasonably pursuing their duties, officers should not have to fear harassing litigation or potential monetary damages, nor should they be unfairly second-guessed months or years later by a judge or jury that can always imagine some alternative means which might have been utilized instead in the contraction of the co

NAPO Executive Director Robert T. Scully stated, "Officers who use any physical force to arrest or restrain a suspect, to prevent a public disturbance, or to defend themselves or others—no matter how minimal the force used or the lack of any injury—will be at risk if this appellate decision is 'not reversed. The fear of personal liability can seriously erode an officer's confidence and willingness to act decisively. In addition, officers routinely fear for their continued careers, their physical and emotional health and that of their families, and even sometimes their financial solvency (if not fully indemnified and if the possibility of punitive damages exists) when named as defendants in lawsuits alleging constitutional violations. It is no wonder that police departments are having difficulty in keeping and recruiting officers, with poor morale being the biggest obstacle to retaining current officers and a major factor in recruiting en."

a major factor in recruiting new ones. Scully continued, "We should not underestimate the impact of this case on law enforcement. Were the lower court's ruling applied nationally, the number of federal civil rights actions against officers going to trail will probably increase, by unfairly taking away from officers a key pretrial defense and subjecting them to lengthy discovery and trials and potential punitive damages. Basic legal research already discloses an everincreasing number of section 1983 excessive-force claims against officers—hundreds of appellate decisions alone in the last few years. It is no secret that a "cottage industry" of attorneys has developed to sue police officers. This "industry's" primary purpose is to find clients with a grievance against the police because of alleged mistreatment and then to bring lawsuits alleging constitutional violations, for the purpose of winning substantial sums. While that henomenon is obviously the American way, and while a few cases may merit a finding of liability and damages, it is no secret that the goal behind many of these cases is to obtain a significant pre-trial settlement, which state or local governments are often willing to make for financial hardship or political reasons.

Affirming the lower court's decision would provide even more incentive to file lawsuits against officers and their agencies.

Turning to the facts of this case, NAPO's brief concluded that qualified immunity would entitle the Petitioner officer to summary judgment, in light of clearly established principles governing the use of force, because military police officers could have reasonably believed that his specific actions in arresting Respondent Katz, in quickly removing him from the ceremony, and in placing him in a van out of sight, were lawful under these circumstances—the standards et by the Supreme Court. Failing to quickly remove the Respondent could have disrupted the Presidio ceremony and encouraged others to register protests, as well as possibly increasing a security risk to the Vice President and other officials. In summary, the force used on Katz was of the type that police officers could reasonably expect to use to remove an individual quickly from a crowd to prevent a public disturbance.

In addition, four federal circuit courts of appeal apply the principle of de minimis or minimal use of force and grand qualified immunity whenever the force used by a law enforcement officer was minimal, and the injuries were minor or nonexistent. Because the force used in removing the Respondent and in placing him in the van was nominal and minimal, as indicated by lack of an injury, the Petitioner should have been granted summary judgment under one of three standards applied by other circuit courts (as discussed on pages 24-30 of the brief).

Executive Director Scully concluded, "We welcome the opportunity for the Supreme Court to clarify and reaffirm an important doctrine serving the public interest. We hope that the U.S. Supreme Court will agree with our position when it renders a decision."

Oklahoma's Steve Downie Named National Law Enforcement Officers Memorial Fund's Officer of the Month

Washington, D.C.—The National Law Enforcement Officers Memorial Fund (NLEOMF) has announced the selection of Officer Steve Downie of the Tulsa (OK) Police Department, as its Officer of the Month for December, 2000. Officer Downie is currently assigned to the department's Mounted Police unit.

Like many high school students, Steve Downie had not yet chosen a career path, when an opportunity arose which would alter the course of his life. As part of community service program, a police department on the outskirts of Los Angeles offered high school students the chance to participate in a ride-along program. Officer Downie will tell you that after just one day he was hooked. He set his sights on becoming a law enforcement officer and has never regretted that decision. After high school, he received his Associates Degree in Police Science from the Cerritos Junior College in Norwalk, California, and shortly thereafter relocated to Tulsa, Oklahoma, to begin his career.

Officer Downie has worked in several areas within the department, including Patrol, the K-9 unit and the SWAT team and has been the recipient of numerous awards and commendations. Just three short years after joining the department, he was nominated for the Tulsa Police Department's Officer of the Month award, an honor which has been bestowed on him three separate times since 1988. He has received the Medal of Valor and Purple Heart from the Tulsa Police Department, the Oklahoma Association of Chiefs of Police and the Collahoma Sheriffs and Peace Officers-Association, as well as its National Law Enforcement Citation.

In May, 1989, Officer Downie was assigned to the department's K-9 unit. His instructor, Senior Police Officer Dick Hobson soon became a trusted mentor as well as a good friend. Downie refers to Hobson as the "big brother I never had" and says, "Dick spoon fed me the training required to work with the dogs."

With more than 17 years on the department, Officer Downie had never drawn his weapon. The possibility of a gun battle had crossed his mind many times and he often contemplated what the scenario would be and how he would react. Unfortunately, in June, 1996, Steve Downie would learn firsthand the terror of an ambush and the sacrifice so many officers are called upon to make.

On the evening of June 10, 1996, the police were called to an alley to search for a man carrying a shotgun. The gunman was believed to be one of three suspects wanted for the robbery of a local restaurant earlier that day. After patrolling the area in their cruisers, the officers left their vehicles to seal off the alley with crime scene tape. At that point shots rang out and before the officers could even return fire, Officer Hobson received a mortal gunshot wound to the chest and Officer Downie was shot in the legs. Although seriously injured and unable to see the gunman, Officer Downie fired off seven shots in the direction of the gunman's muzzle flash. It had no idea of the severity of his own injuries, nor that the wounds suffered by his friend and colleague were fatal. Three other officers in the alley exchanged gunfire with the suspect, striking him several times.

It took many months for Officer Downie's physical wounds to heal. In all the times he had speculated about a gun battle, the idea of losing a friend had never entered his mind. The pain and damage to his legs was insignificant to the loss he suffered when Dick Hobson died. Remarkably, he was never bitter nor ever thought of leaving the job he loved. Rather he vowed to be a role model for younger officers, as Hobson had been for him.

On the one-year anniversary of the shoot-out, a local paper ran an article about Officer Hobson's killer, a young man with a long history of mental illness, who had been in and out of psychiatric hospitals most of his life. For the first time Officer Downie learned that the gunman's father had been a K-9 officer in Montana, who was medically retired from the police force having received injuries in a shooting a decade before. Struck by the irony of this, Steve Downie reached out to the parents of the young man who had shot him and killed his partner. Although he himself had never had a child, he imagined the pain of losing their son to be unbearable, particularly under the circumstances. He wanted them to know that he understood their pain and that he grieved for them. It was important that they knew he was not angry and had moved on with his life.

Officer Downie credits his ability to cope with the shooting and its aftermath to the support he received from the Tulsa Police Department. Upon his return to work he requested the special training required to become a member of the Critical Incident Response Team, which is tasked with responding to critical incidents involving police officers. As such, he is now able to lend moral support to officers experiencing trauma, such as having been wounded in the line of duty.

In 1999, Officer Downie was assigned to the Uniform Division North Patrol. His then supervisor, Sgt. Bill Gore, states, "He actively sought subjects known to have open warrants, with an emphasis on people with a history of violence. While dedicating himself to this important task, he did not neglect his regular assignments." For 1999 Officer Downie led the department with 160 felony arrests and served 191 felony arrest warrants. He made 99 misdemeanor arrests and served 305 misdemeanor warrants. Also that year, he received a commendation from the department for locating a homicide suspect. Officer Downie continues to assist with the training of new recruits in the department's Situational Reasoning exercises.

Downie and his wife are involved with the Homebound Ministry of their church and volunteer countless hours with the Meals on Wheels program. Sgt. Gore refers to him as "the very epitome of what a police officer should strive to be and he is an example of what our nation needs and expects from its law enforcement officers."

Located in our nation's capital, the National Law Enforcement Officers Memorial Fund, a nonprofit organization, is dedicated to honoring the service and sacrifice of America's law enforcement officers. The Fund, which was authorized by Congress to build and maintain the National Law Enforcement Officers Memorial, pays special tribute to the more than 15,000 officers who have died in the line of duty dating back to 1792. The NLEOMF Officer of the Month Program, which began in 1996, recognizes federal, state and local officers who distinguish themselves through exemplary law enforcement service and devotion to duty.

Indiana Troopers Association Joins NAPO Adding 600 Troopers to NAPO's Membership

Washington, D.C.—The National Association of Police Organizations (NAPO) announced today that the Indiana Troopers Association (ITA) has affiliated with NAPO adding 600 new troopers to NAPO's growing membership

"I am pleased that the Indiana Troopers Association has decided to affiliate with NAPO. Their addition to our organization is a valuable one, and I look forward to working together with them on our top legislative priorities," said Robert T. Scully, NAPO's executive director.

The Indiana Troopers Association was founded in 1979. The Indiana Troopers Association supports its members and their families with benefits, services and advocacy. Benefits include: supplemental coverage for prescription medication, prescription eye care, and dental care as well as a Death Benefit Fund payment of $20,000 to the beneficiary of a member killed in the line of duty. The ITA provides legal counsel to their members and the positive promotion of legislation in the Indiana State Legislature beneficial to law enforcement personnel.

"Our decision to affiliate with NAPO was based on their commitment to representing all law enforcement officers, including troopers on Capitol Hill. NAPO is a great organization, and we have complete faith in their leadership in Washington, D.C.," said Michael Nufer, President of the ITA.

The National Association of Police Organizations (NAPO) is a coalition of police unions and associations from across the United States that serves in Washington, D.C. to advance the interests of America's law enforcement officers through legislative and legal advocacy, political action and education. Founded in 1978, NAPO now represents more than 4,000 police unions and associations. 225,000 sworn law enforcement officers, 11,000 retired officers and more than 100,000 citizens who share a common deducation to fair and effective crime control and law enforcement.

on eby Craig W. Floyd January 3, 2001

In New York, three officers were sent to prison for their roles in the brutal assault against a man, Abner Louima, who was in police custody. In New Jersey, five officers were recently found guilty of civil rights violations in the beating of a man they wrongly arrested on suspicion that he murdered a fellow officer. In Los Angeles, members of an elite anti-gang police unit were convicted of planting evidence and other corruption charges.

For many Americans, those are the unforgettable images of policing in America during the year 2000—and for good reason. Because of the great power and trust that we have bestowed upon our law enforcement professionals, we must hold them to the highest standards of conduct. When they come up short, we should be shocked and outraged, and appropriate punishment should result. This is a view shared by every honorable law enforcement officer in America. They understand better than anyone else that when a bod cop loses control, it tarnishes the badge of every officer and breeds mistrust with the public they serve.

Skeptics might dispute this fact and point to what some have called a "code of silence" that supposedly prevents officers from ratting on a colleague. But, the facts simply do not support this claim. Actually, in many law enforcement agencies around the country the majority of misconduct charges investigated by a department's internal affairs division are filed not by citizens, but by other police officers.

Those same skeptics would probably also argue that excessive use of force by police officers is widespread and that the cases that make the newspapers are just the tip of the iceberg. In fact, the exact opposite is true. Based on a study by the International Association of Chiefs of Police, fewer than one-tenth of one percent of all calls that police respond to ever result in the use of any type of force. Put another way, police do not use force of any kind 99.9 percent of the time.

There are some, I suppose, who will always expect the worst of our police officers. And, if that negative attitude helps to challenge our officers to do a better job and to work harder at building the public's trust, then that is okay.

But, as we assess the job performed by our law enforcement officers during the past year, let us not forget about the innocent lives that were saved and the brave officers who died preserving public safety. While the plummeting crime rate appears to be leveling off, the FBI recently reported that the number of serious crimes declined again during the first half of 2000 to its lowest level since 1978. More police officers, who are better prepared for the job than ever before, is the biggest reason America is safer. This fact is too often overlooked, and so are the sacrifices made by our officers. Between 1992, when the crime rate began its steady decline, and 1999 there were 1,250 federal, state and local law enforcement officers killed in the performance of duty. They put themselves in harm's way so the rest of us could be safe.

In the year 2000, those sacrifices continued. Some 150 officers made the ultimate sacrifice during the past 12 months—that is roughly one officer killed somewhere in America nearly every other day. Maryland State Trooper Edward Toatley was conducting an undercover drug buy when he was shot and killed. Cincinnati Officer Kevin Crayon was dragged to his death by a car being driven by a 12-year-old boy who attempted to flee when the officer asked for a driver's license. Oklahoma Corrections Sgt. Joe A. Gamble was stabbed to death when he went to assist a fellow officer who was being attacked by an inmate. California Highway Patrol Officer Sean Nava was struck and killed by a drunk driver while assisting at an accident, seen. Texas Trooper Randall Vetter was shet and killed by a man he

The stories of police corruption and brutality must not be forgotten, but neither should these stories of selfless service and heroic sacrifice. In the words of Molly Winters, the National President of the Concerns of Police Survivors, "Too often, the rare missteps of our police officers are sensationalized and the many sacrifices go unnoticed."

January Meeting

Our monthly meeting was on Jan. 23, 2001. Two members attended their first meeting. Dennis DeNoi is retired from the USMC. He has been with LAPD for four years and is assigned to Training Division. Art Dixon has had prior service in the Navy. He is a civilian employ-ee with LAPD and has been assigned to Training Division for Welcome gentlemen; we hope to see more of you

Day at the Races

Sunday, Jan. 23 as the annual "Day at the Races," sponsored by the 17th District of the American Legion.

It was a warm and beautiful day. The District ordered buffet style foods for 1,000 people. Yup, we finished it all. A few of the ladies had plastic bags in their purses because there were no leftovers Next year I'm going to bring a bag, those kosher dill pickles were great.

And talk about winners, we all have our own method for picking winners. Regretfully, not all of the methods worked. The big win of the day was when a group of eight pooled their money and bet on a long shot, just at random. The horse came in on a photo fin-ish. Someone said that it (picking the win) was skill. Sure it was. Please pass the pickles.

Membership Requirements

To join the American Legion, a prospective member has to have served on active duty in one of the military Post #381 Police Post is what is called a "Specialty Post." In addition to having military service, the member also has have been employed by the LAPD (civilian or sworn). Other "Specialty Posts" in the area include Post 309, Sheriffs; Post 342, Water & Power; and Post 653, Los Angeles Post Office. Posts other than Specialty Posts" only require prior military service.

If you meet these two requirements (military service & LAPD employment) and are not a member, well you should be. Stop by at one of our monthly meetings or give us a call. The yearly dues are only $30.00 It's a tax deduction, and it helps the veterans.

Transfers

Mitchell Nowlen is a Motor Cop assigned to Valley Traffic. He was a member of another American Legion post. He recently transferred to Police Post. Welcome, Mitch, hope you can make it to our steak fry in June.

Sweats in Every Seabag

Navy officials are in the process of approving a PT outfit, for all Navy personnel. The gear includes shorts, T-shirt and a sweat suit (it sounds like our academy PT outfit). The clothing will be used during physical training and yearly testing. The standardized uniform is hoped to build esprit de corps, promote teamwork and help shape a sharper image of the Navy. (Do you know where your sweats are?)

Fifty Year Members

National Commander of the American Legion Ray G. Smith has sent me "Continuous Membership Certificates" for the following persons. They are members of Post 381 who have had continuous membership in good standing for 50 years: Donald E. Anderson, Joel M. Baldwin, Gale C. Banks, Richard C. Briggs, Kenneth W. Carlsted, Delvin L. Carroll, Gerald G. Cohen, Charles E. Collins, Clifford R. DeBernardi, Robert T. Fishel, Harold J. Floren, Leonard R. Flores, George Henderson, Martin L. Johnson, John W. Judd, John J. Kellinski, Orval H. Long, Jr., Gerald T. Mahoney, Joseph T. Marchesano, William G. Menton, Ignacio C. Salseda, Robert M. Smith, Stanley E. Smith, Arthur J. Trax, Jr., and Samuel A. Wilson, Jr.

Fifty years is a long time. Most readers of this article aren't even fifty years old. Not personally knowing any of the named members or knowing any of their stories, I was curious about "how and why." I went back "on-line" in history why. I went back "on-line" in history fifty years to 1951. I found out that Japan surrendered on Sept. 9, 1945. These members could be WWII veter-ans. But then on June 25, 1950, North Korea invaded the Republic of South Korea. So, the members could have been Korean War vets, or possibly they served in both wars. Now I'm more curious.

The certificates will be presented to the honorees at the yearly steak fry. It will be at the Police Academy on July 17, 2001. I hope that some of the honorees can make it. I sure would like to hear some of their stories and express my appreciation in person.

Questions to Ponder

Why does Hawaii have interstates? Why does a medical doctor not have a business, but a "practice"? Why is "abbreviation" such a long word? Is there another word for "thesaurus"? Why are flotation devices under airplane seats rather than parachutes? If con is the opposite of pro, is Congress the opposite of progress?

Why is it that when you transport omething by car it's called a shipment, but when you transport something by ship it's called cargo? Why do we drive on parkways and park on driveways?

Fifty years ago, on February 2001. Corporal Tyler came into my life. Modern medicine at the time did every, thing to try and save his life. Whole blood transfusions, postage stamp skin grafts, relieving bed sores by turning him over on a Stryker frame bed, plus tender loving care.

I was discharged in February, 1952. Corporal Tyler had been my responsibility for 13 months. Before leaving I interviewed several medical technicians before choosing my replacement.

About two years later, as I was walking my son in his carriage, I met a fellow who had been one of my patients. He quickly filled me in on the news at the hospital. I asked him about Corporal Tyler. He told me about his death He told me that Corporal Tyler kept calling for me.

Corporal Tyler was a special case. Although he was from somewhere in Virginia, he never had visitors. His diagnosis was third degree burns over most of his torso and his legs. He weighed 95 lbs. and smoked continuously. In fact, it was his smoking habit that had caused his injuries. Apparently he dropped a lighted match on the ground when his clothes were full of gasoline. Fortunately, his combat boots saved his feet. (Did I mention that his I.Q. was in the mid-eight-

Corporal Tyler was not a typical G.I. nor was he wounded in battle, but he was a volunteer soldier that had served in Korea. His ultimate sacrifice was due to the war. I was one of the lucky ones only because I had a military specialty that kept me stateside. I think of him often. I think of the many incidents that occurred while I was in charge of the ward. Recently several officers at ASD received awards. Command Pilot John Harrell received the Stephen Jay Hooper Award for ASD's employee of 2000. John was responsible for air operations during the DNC. This was a huge task organizing, coordinating, and educating aircrews from local, state, and federal agencies. John spent many long hours meeting with law enforcement and media air crews so that all of us were on the same page when the DNC began. It was a complicated situation and it all went very well. Much of this was due to the efforts of John Harrell. Congratulations, John.

The aircrew of the year was also named recently. This honor went to Command Pilot Pat McNamara and Tactical Flight Officer Mark Bolanos. Both Pat and Mark are dedicated employees who consistently go that extra mile for Air Support Division. Pat is currently assigned to the Special Flights section of ASD, but is frequently spotted flying PM watch ASTRO. Pat is a sought-after partner due to his knowl-

He takes his job very seriously and consistently strives to give all of you on the ground the best service Air Support has to offer. Pat and Mark carned this honor through their dedication to all of you. Well done, guys.

"Comments of the Call"

Recently my partner and I were over a Possible 459 Suspect There Now call in 77th. We arrived a few minutes prior to the ground units and observed nothing unusual at the location. As the primary unit approached from several blocks away a familiar 77th voice broke the silence, and on simplex advised us that he was a minute out. He then read us the comments of the call. Most of that information was never broadcasted in the original hot shot. This officer then hamdled the call and kept us advised of exactly what the plan was. His information allowed us to maximize our efforts and help keep all of the officers on the call safe. Giving an aircrew the comments of a call is often helpful, and we really appreciate when you let us know what the plan is prior to executing it. My partner and I both commented on how well the call went due to some simple communication between the primary unit and the TFO. James Lumpkin, thanks for your extra effort on the call. We do appreciate it.

ASD Tip of the Month

Perimeters are a challenging tactic, but if done correctly are very effective. The first minute after losing sight of a suspect is the most critical. One of the decisions that have to be made is size of the perimeter. There are several factors that must be quickly considered, the most important of these is what is the suspect wanted for. Is it attempt 459 or did he just shoot at you and your partner. If the crime is one of a very serous nature like ADW on a police officer or you are chasing a known serial criminal, you should immediately think big. I have been at numerous perimeters that were one square block for a suspect who shot at and sometimes hit an officer. Think about that for a minute, Is a suspect that just shot at you going to hang out close by or get as far away from that scene as fast as possible. In most cases it is the later so we need to do our part to contain him. That could mean three or four blocks in every direction for a serious crime. We will do everything we can to assist you with your perimeters, but remember that the decisions you make in that first minute are going to affect the success of your containment. Watch your

Whatz Up With Wilshire

by Steve Nichols Wilshire Division

We're back . . . and not a moment too soon. My apologies for not having an article last month, but sometimes stuff happens.

To start, a step back in time to the Wilshire holiday party (Dec. 8) is in order. As promised, here are some photos of a few who were (un)lucky enough to get caught on film. (A special thank you to Officer Baxter Duke who took the photos.)

Capt Albanese, Capt Jacobs, and wives

It appears that a good time was had by

On a more serious note, Wilshire Division would like to extend our sympathy to Sgt. D. Medof who recently suffered the passing of his father. Our thoughts are with you, Sir, at this time. Please know we are here for you. And, from my partner, Officer J. Talmage, he extends his appreciation to all the officers who expressed their sympathy at the passing of his mother (Dec. 8).

Wilshire Division has started the year with a bang. Crime is down within our borders, and for the first time in quite a while, officers can see a glimmer of hope in what has been an otherwise dissituation. Capt. Albanese recent addressed midday watch roll call and discussed a variety of issues currently facing officers. He commented on the dangers officers face when dealing with dangerous and combative suspects, along with the dangers they face as a result of liability associated with their actions. In an open discussion format, we discussed the complaint form process and the pending consent decree. Capt. Albanese reminded us that it took courage to become a police officer, and that it takes courage to perform the duties of our position each and every day we "clear." He summed it up best when he said, "At 2:00 in the morning when there's a prowler in the backyard, it's not the ACLU or "Police Watch" a community member will call. It's LAPD, and a Los Angeles Police Officer will respond and put his or her life at risk in order to protect the community member and their family." He continued by saying that we cannot afford to compromise our oath of office by not performing our duties to the best of our ability. There are a quarter of a million men, women and children who live in Wilshire Area who depend on us to protect and to serve them. As professional police officers, we cannot let anything stand in the way of providing quality service to the community. This service must be consistently provided with honor and integrity. He thanks us for reducing violent crime in Wilshire Area by 1.3% in 1999. This is significant, because the rest of the city realized an 8% increase in violent crime. #### Once Upon a Time ...

Twelve years ago Jim Miller came to 77th Street as a sergeant. Back in the day, when a sergeant could be a sergeant in the field, that is where you would find Jim. He would be there on our calls, sixting us in any way be could. Taking assisting us in any way he could. Taking suspects into custody, deploying on perimeters, interviewing suspects and victims was routine. He never thought of his rank as outsides the never thought of his rank as a privilege, he just wanted to make sure that his officers were taken care of. When he needed to quickly take on the role of the sergeant on scene, he completed his task. There were even a few times when he created his own little adventures for us to partake in, and that was always fun. Jim put in countless hours while a sergeant at 77th Street, and it appears he is going to be doing the same as Commanding Officer of 77th Street. Captain Miller has come to a division with some serious morale issues, and he understands the task which lies ahead. He has an abundance of experience when it comes to management issues, but he still remembers his past at 77th Street when our lives in patrol were in "Mach 2" from the time you cleared until EOW.

Captain Miller and his wife Sherry reside in Devonshire Area and have two grown children, Kristi and Jeremy. Welcome back to all of you! May this ride be a little bit smoother!

When asked about his vision for 77th Street, this is what he says: "I see a unique opportunity for 77th Street Area to become the premiere Area of Operations-South Bureau and the entire city. We have some of the best officers in the city engaged in police work of major importance. In order to be as effective as possible, we must focus our efforts on those things, which will impact the future and make a difference in peoples lives. We must treat all citizens with as much respect as they will allow. 77th When asked about his vision for 77th lives, we must treat all criticens with as much respect as they will allow, 77th Street is a good place to work and we will create a positive working environment where employees look forward to make the control of ning to work

May the Tradition Continue

LAPRAAC pulled a fast one on us and moved up the weight-lifting contest date to March 16th. Was this some attempt to catch this "All American Division" off guard? Well, we still have our "Power Pig" mentor, Lt. Paul Von Lutzow. So long as we maintain the title, he promises not to retire. Go figure, over 30 years on the job, and he chooses to stay on for us! Is that inspiration or what? At present this division is training diligently to keep the title! We welcome the challenge! We do not dress pretty, we just show up with a heartfelt determination. Best of luck to all of you!

You Can Run, But You Can't Hide

On January 16th, Officers Rudy Chavez, #31642, and Michael Mariscal, #35457, received information of a named suspect involved in robberies in the area of 76th Street and Vermont Avenue. While patrolling the area, the officers observed the suspect and attempted to take him into custody. After a foot pursuit, and a quickly established perimeter, the suspect was taken into custody while hiding under a car. Several D.R. numbers were cleared as a result of the officer's arrest.

Violent crime is still on the rise, and Violent crime is still on the rise, and the increase appears to center around armed gang members. Hello . . .! Back in September, Top Dollar Hustlers began feuding among themselves and suspect Moore "Big Wood," shot one of his homeboys in the head and thigh. Outstanding work! Keep up the good job, guys!

Newton CLEAR nails "38 Street" again with a multi three-felony arrest.
On January 16, 2001, Officers Kevin

On January 16, 2001, Officers Kevin Scott and Miguel Contreras drove by a market located at 32nd Street and Compton Avenue. They observed a graffiti remvoal employee painting over "Thirty Eight Street Gang" graffiti on the south wall of the market. Officers Scott and Contreras also noticed three infamous "38 Street" gang members standing approximately 50 yards east of the location watching the removal of their loop.

Approximately thirty minutes later, Officers Scott and Contrens were cruising northbound on Compton Avenue when they noticed a notorious "38 Street" gang member, whom they had observed earlier, spray painting his logo over the freshly painted wall of the market located at 32nd Street and Compton Avenue. The young man probably ran Avenue. The young man probably ran out of paper at home. Officers Scott and Contreras also saw his two "38 Street" accomplices, that they had also seen earlier, acting as lookouts. Just then one of the lookouts yelled out "The cops are coming!" So the chase was on, with the tagger fleeing on foot with the can of spray paint in his right hand and Officers Scott and Contreras in hot pursuit. As the gang member attempted to open the gate to a residence with his left hand, Officer Scott and Contreras observed an item drop to the ground from his waist-band area. Just as Officers Scott and Contreras exited their vehicle they saw the gang member bend down and pick up a blue steel semi-auto handgun, shoving it back into his waistband area and continued to run inside the residence, slamming the first door shu!

Officers Scott and Contreras quickly set up a perimeter around the house and requested additional units to assist in the apprehension of this notorious gang member. Moments later the additional officers arrived along with their supervisor, and they formulated a plan of attack. The "38th Street" gang member, seeing the overwhelming force setting up in front of his home, decided to give up. Officers Scott and Contreras took the gang member into custody for vandalism and carrying a concealed weapon without any further incident.

During their search of the gang member's home, they recovered both the semi-auto handgun, which was a 45 caliber, fully loaded with one round in the chamber, and that can of spray paint.

Just as Officers Scott and Contreas were concluding their investigation, they observed the two other scandalous "38 Street" gan gemebres lingering across the street from their partner's house, so Officers Scott and Contreas directed the other officers to arrest them for vandal-

Gang member #1 was arrested for 626.9 PC (carrying a gun within 1,000 feet of a school).

Gang members #2 and #3 were arrested for 602 WIC/186.22 PC (participation in a gang crime).

Outstanding work goes to both Officer Kevin Scott and Officer Miguel Contreras for ridding the community of these three notoriously violent "38 Street" gang members.

On January 19, 2000 Officers Rojas and Barajas responded to a radio call for service of a theft investigation. When officers arrived they met with the P/R, a security guard at the location. The P/R explained that he observed a man wearing a black security jacket, with several letters missing from the back, with a gray hood sticking out, near a trailer on the property. The man was attempting to pull a black bag out from under the trailer.

The P/R yelled at the man to stop, the man fled the location and left the bag. The P/R inspected the bag and found that it contained several computer items (monitor, keyboard, CPU's). The P/R formed the opinion that the items were taken from inside of the building that he was guarding and he called the PD. The P/R was able to verify that one of the Officers interviewed the P/R's partner and he confessed to the burglaries. The suspect was still wearing the security jacket missing several letters from the back, with the gray hood sticking out. Due to the outstanding interview skills, and attention to the details by the officers and Sgt. at the scene, another burglar is off the streets, great job.

two male suspects ordered me annea security guard not to move. The guard complied and stood still. The leader of this group, a female later identified as Sonja Key, approached the guard, disarmed him, then shot him in the head with his own weapon. As the guard lay on the ground dying, this lowlife, Sonja, straddled over him, pointed the gun at the stunned witnesses and stated, "Who wants to be next?" The other suspects vaulted the teller counter and removed currency form several teller drawers. The suspects then left the location.

What many people did not know was that at the time of this robbery Det. Joe Chandler was battling cancer. Realizing the ter-minal nature of his illness Det. Chandler called in his partner Steve Laird (retired from LAPD '97 now assistant VP corporate security for BofA), so that he would be involved with every aspect of the investigation. Det Laird, who was on vacation, responded to the scene.

Within seven days of this murder/robbery, the suspects went to Wilshire Division and committed their second armed takeover bank robbery. During this robbery another female suspect shot the unarmed security guard several times. Stunned customers and employees dropped to the ground. Sonja, who was armed, remained in the lobby area as a lookout. While standing guard, she approached an elderly female who was laying face down and began to pistolwhip her. The bank surveillance cameras recorded this cowardly act. The photograph was given to the local media with a request for assistance from the public to help in identifying these ruthless killers

Within one day of the press release, the detectives received an anonymous

call from a citizen that named Sonja Key as the leader of this group. SIS was requested to monitor Key while the detectives showed "six pack" photos to the witnesses. The detectives obtained tentative identifications only and per the District Attorney more evidence was needed to obtain a filing. On the sixth day of their surveillance, SIS observed six suspects enter two vehicles (three suspects per vehicle) and followed them to a bank in Hollywood Division. As four of the suspects, including Key, armed themselves in preparation to enter the bank, SIS moved in and took all of the suspects into custody without inci-dent. (Another fine job under very stressful conditions by our friends at

During the follow-up investigation, Detectives Chandler and Laird dis-covered that Sonja Key was a very evil person. Two years prior to the bank robberies she had been involved with two armored car rob-beries. During one of the robberies, Sonja, aka "Puppet" and her female partner approached the guard as he returned to the armored truck with a bag of currency. Sonja's partner engaged the guard in a gun battle during which both individuals were wounded. Not wanting to leave a potential witness behind that may identify her, Sonja shot her partner in the head killing her. She then fled the area. Now, not wanting to be a bad friend, Sonja went to her partners funeral and wrote in the guest book, "Sorry, had to do it. Puppet."

This evidence was later used in her trial. Sonja, along with three others, were sentenced to life without parole, the two getaway drivers were sentenced to 30 years. The jury deadlocked nine to three for death but three jurists could not sentence a woman to death. (Nice.)

I'm sorry to say that Det. Joe Chandler passed away in July, 1995, between the preliminary hearing and trial. Det.

Chandler served the city and citizens with integrity and honor for 26-1/2 years. Det. Society lost a true hero but his memory will always live on.

Chris Arce is pulling the pin after 30 years of service to the city. Chris started her career in 1970 and has worked Central Records, Hollenbeck Records, Central Detectives, PDID then on to RHD in June, 1985. For the past 15 years Chris has had the pleasure of working under the command of Captains William Cobb, Jerry Bova, W. O. Gartland and Jim Tatreau. In addition to working for these fine captains, Chris had also worked the Major Crimes Section under the command of Lt. Ed Henderson. Chris has been an integral part of the RHD family, from her involvement to the daily operations of the division to her involvement in organ-izing the annual Christmas parties. Chris and her husband, Addison "Bud" Arce, will be pulling up stakes and moving to Hayden, Idaho. For those of you that since 1962 (I was three then). Even with all that time on LAPD, Jack is second in seniority on the department.

Just Another Day at DHD

Detective Headquarters Division (DHD) held its first training day for 2001. The training was held in Griffith Park at the Crystal Spring Ranger Station. The training was very informaand will no doubt be useful in DHD's daily activities. A BIG thank you goes out to all of you who helped pre-pare the very tasty food we enjoyed at the steak fry. Okay, I just have to say it, the room was FREEZING!! And to the person who booked that room, the word is out, we will find you.

referral, or placement for a mentally ill person allowing field officers to quickly return to other field duties.

One example is when SMART responded to a report of a disorderly pas-senger on board an aircraft at the Los Angeles International Airport. Airline personnel reported that the subject was harassing other passengers on board the aircraft, went to the layatory during the flight and scrubbed the sink until his knuckles bled, burned his knuckles with a lighter and simulated shooting passen-gers with his hands. Officer William Villasenior and Mental Health Clinician Dr. Mitchell Caine responded to the scene to evaluate the subject who was taken into custody by airport detail offieers. The subject was placed on a 5150 WIC hold and transported to Harbor UCLA Medical Center for further evaluation and treatment. Good job, keep up the good work

Thank God She is in Law Enforcement

I have to roll over on one of my part-ners—Det. Rosibel Smith bought her son a very nice and expensive drum set for Christmas. Rose, being as impatient as she is, couldn't wait until her husband assembled the drum set. Rose, along with her co-accomplice mother-in-law, assembled the drum set on their very own. And VOILA, see exhibit #1. Yes, she was serious and couldn't figure out why she had-numerous parts left over.

Sorry, Rose, this was just too funny to keep to myself.

Officers Rios, #32405, and Gonzales, #33390, were working 16A1 in uniform patrol in the area of 12775 Encinitas Ave. Motel 6 motel. This location was known for recovery of stolen vehicles. At this point officers noticed a two-door brown Honda Accord parked to the rear of the above location. Officers ran the vehicle for wants and warrants and came back LAPD Foothill stolen. While officers were checking on driver of the vehi cle from the Hotel manager, officers observed the stolen vehicle exit the motel parking lot. Talking to some of the Detectives, I was advised that D-1 Martinez, #25426, has a very talented daughter. Her name is Adriana and she loves to paint abstract art. Good luck and we are all proud of you and your father.

We all are happy to hear that one of our special officers, Rosa Garrett, delivered a healthy boy, Myles, early in the morning, February 1, 2001. He was 21 inches and weighed in at 7 lbs., 14 oz. Mother, child and father are doing great. A take-my-hat-off to Father Garrett. I would see him at the station about every day to make sure Rosa was okay and made dinner for her. Congratulations to Det. A. Lopez of Van Nuys Homicide Unit for receiving

Sct. Martha Castaneda Civilian of the Quarter

Detective of the Year! Also congratulations to Det. D. Potter for Detective of the Quarter, Sgt. R. Hundertmark for Sergeant of the Quarter, Senior Lead Officer R. Carpenter for Officer of the Quarter, Sct. Martha Castaneda for Civilian of the Quarter. Well it seems that the homicide unit has a new D3. His name is Frankie Blue Eyes, and don't let his innocent face fool you. He is really a pit bull in disguise, Here is a picture of him cracking a case

Det. III Frankie Blue Eyes

right now. Speaking of pit bulls, who says we need more officers? During a recent HELP CALL, Officer J. Conrad was the only officer left in the station where he acted as w/c, aw/c, kit room, front desk, and media relations officer!! When everyone returned to the station and went home, I received overtime slips from everyone except Conrad. I am not sure if it's dedication or senility being the reason for him not turning in an overtime slip, but anyway it's a job well done.

Talking about jobs being well done, a senior detective got had by a junior detective. Seems the senior detective was halfway through a report about a suspect stealing all the water out of a swimming pool before he realized she got him. Well at least no one can say he blows off citizens.

Officer D. Drulias is keeping busy working on the new timekeeping/sub-poena control office which is located across from the Admin. Unit. Dan measured the room and after our desks, file cabinets, and computers are in place, the only way for Officers J. Rigney, M. Barnes, and myself to fit in the room is if all three of us lose several pounds. Maybe we can just get smaller desks.

Old Timer Updates

Ret. Officer Bob Denton was in the station looking thin and relaxed, tuff like he was watching the deer walk across his backyard.

Ret. Officer Steve Hostetler I hear is enjoying life in Arizona. Steve has a goatee, an earring, a 4-inch ponytail and traded in a black & white for a quad runner, which he rides six miles to the Elks Lodge for refreshments. Ret. Officer Bob Rose has not stepped foot in the station since he left. Bob, drop us a line in between batting softballs.

Ret. Lt. Dravidzius is now a chief of police in a town back east. Rumor has it that one of his officers did a traffic stop and made a big arrest of a wanted suspect. No, it was not a murder or narco suspect; it was much bigger—fishing with live worms. Yes, he was one wanted man. Good luck to lieutenant on his new appointment. Chief Dravidzius, keep your bad guys in your town.

Active Reserve Officer K. Sheehy is Active Reserve Officer K. Sheehy is keeping fit working out in the gym every day and drinking wine in her backyard with her husband, Active Retired Officer B. Sheehy. Brian left the department to hired on with an airline, Kim left the department. Both enjoy their new careers.

In closing I would like all of us to remember the officers who are IOD and long-term sick. If you know any of these officers personally pick up the phone or drop a card just to let them know they are not forgotten. Van Nuys would also like to wish a speedy and healthy recovery to Officer Dax Martin's wife, Jennifer, who is dealing with some health issues of her own.

New Crime Fighting Technique?

I have it on good authority that one of our senior officers has recently developed a new technique to identify vandalism suspects. I have been told that on a recent evening our very own Officer Manny "the sniffing crime fighter" Andujo, in an effort to impress his new partner, developed a new way to "sniff" out bad guys. It seems that the officers

Sgt. Fred Kramer looking his administrative best.

received a radio call concerning vandalsm suspects creating graffiti. When they arrived, the suspects were gone. Manny, in his infinite wisdom, decided that he had to find out who the culprits were that left the graffiti. So, as other astonished officers looked on, Manny walked up to the fresh paint and began to sniff it, in an apparent attempt to solve the crime. Now, I've looked through all my training materials but I've yet to find the one that leaches this technique. Manny, will you please put on a seminar and teach the test of us your new methods so the rest of us can be efficient crime fighters like

The annual Challenge Cup Relay is just around the corner, so please don't forget that we still need support personnel. If you are not participating as a runner, we could use you for support. There are many areas where support is utilized, from driving one of the vans to "catching" runners at the various stages. See Austin Fernald for more information.

Hola

We are pleased to welcome Lt. A. Barrera, who joins us from TRSG, where she was a Sgt. II. Lt. Barrera is now at the helm as the PM Watch Commander. Lt. Barrera, congratulations on your promotion and welcome to the east side. We also say hello to Det. M. Flynn, who also promoted into Hollenbeck from MSD, where he was a P-3. Det. J. Gutierrez is now assigned to our division, in from Wilshire. We also welcome back Peter MacDonald, who returns to us following a stint at Narcotics Division. Let me be the first to officially welcome all of you to this great division of ours. You will all love it here.

Adios

We hate to lose the good ones, but Lt. L. Prideaux is now assigned to Newton Division. I don't blame him for leaving though, as it means a promotion to Lt. 2. Lt. Prideaux, thanks for your great work while at Hollenbeck and congratulations Officer Marlon Marrach recently joined us from Foothill and has been on the force for about a year. He was a prior Navy man who was up for reenlistment when his best friend influenced him to get a job with the LAPD. He said it's the best decision he ever made and we wish him luck in his career. He plays socce for the LAPD and basketball for West LA. He stays in shape with almost daily workouts (like the rest of us, right Pauley?). Officer Marrach and his partner once responded to a suicide call where a UCLA student had locked herself in the bathroom. The police arrived and found her with a knife pointed at her stomach. The officers were able to talk her out of it, detain her and get her help.

There's more . . . We wish Sgt. Mike Morisseau all the best as he leaves us for Central. He has a good gasp on tactics and a good way of presenting them during roll call. Central will be lucky to have him.

Over one hundred of Donna's closest friends and family members attended the festivities. OCVD Capt. Vance Proctor, Metro Capt. Richard Roupoli, Capt. Bob Ruchhoff (retired), Capt. #### Commendation

Det. Mike Howard and Doris Andrews were commended by a concerned citizen who wrote a letter to the Chief of Police to express his appreciation. During a standoff between an armed barricaded suspect and Los Angeles Police SWAT Officers , the homeowners were terrified by gunfire, tear gas and the long hours the standoff dragged on. OCVD detectives responded to the location and contacted a citizen source (who happened to be a resident in the building) and provided them a source of information and access to the Metropolitan officers outside. This citizen later wrote a letter to the Chief of Police stating that it was a great relief to himself and his neighbors to have an officer to consult with during their traumatic ordeal.

Promotions and Transfers

Congratulations to Gary Guevara who recently promoted to Det. II. We all wish to welcome Det. II Belinda Robinson who recently transferred in from Devonshire Division. Congratulations to Carmine Sasso who promoted to Sergeant and went to West Los Angeles Division (we miss ya).

Homicide

On Dec. 7, at 11:20 hours, Devonshire Area patrol officers responded to and "ADW ambulance en route, shots fired" radio call at the Sunrise Jewelers Store at 18992 Tampa Blvd. When the officers arrived, they discovered the victim, 44 year-old Karo Zeytounyan, the owner of the business, lying unconscious inside the store. Paramedic personnel respond-ed to render aid to the victim who sustained several gunshots wounds to the upper body. He was subsequently pronounced dead at the scene

Simultaneous to this activity, other officers arriving in the vicinity of the jewelry store were directed by a witness to a male suspect wearing a brown col-ored trenchcoat walking towards a bank near the southwest corner of Tampa Ave and Nordhoff Street. The officers, having monitored an additional radio broadcast describing one of the suspects wear ing a brown colored trenchcoat, initiated a felony pedestrian stop. During this process and while directing the suspect to a prone position, the officers observed the suspect drop what appeared to be a silencer device onto the ground. During the search of the suspect, the officers removed a loaded 9mm handgun from an removed a toaced still handgul from an inside pocket of the trenchooat and a live 22 caliber cartridge from his pants pocket. Witnesses to the murder positively identified this suspect within minof the crime. He was subsequently utes of the crime. He was subsequently arrested and booked for murder.

An unloaded 22 caliber semi-automatic handgun believed to be the murder weapon was recovered in some bushes on the southwest corner of Tampa Ave. and Nordhoff St. at the time of the suspect's arrest. The silencer device he dropped onto the ground retained a male-threaded end that conformed to a female-threaded end of the .22 caliber semi-auto handgun. The live .22 caliber cartridge removed from the suspect's pants pocket is of the same caliber and brand of seven expended cartridges recovered within the confines of the Sunrise Jewelry Store.

Initially, the robbery appeared to have been the motive; however, no money or jewelry appears to have been taken. According to eyewitnesses, at least two other suspects participated in the crime. One of the suspects remained outside of the jewelry store while the primary sus-pect and his confederates are believed to be members of the "Armenian Mafia" and the precise motive for this attack is unknown. The officers arrived within minutes at the location but were unable to locate a victim or witness. At 2156 hours, Devonshire Area officers responded to Mission Community Hospital regarding an "ADW shots fired. just occurred" radio call. When the offi-cers arrived, they learned that two female citizens observed the victim attempting to crawl to his car, which was parked at 15200 Acre St. The victim handed his car keys to the females who then transported the victim to the hospital in the victim's vehicle. The victim was pronounced dead by the attending physician resulting from a gunshot wound to the upper body.

1999 thinking that it was just a "precaution" in case something happened. Well, over the last few months, several things "have happened". First, I cut my hand and needed a hand specialist to correct the damage. I notified the AFLAC personnel in the LA office and they went to work on it immediately and got me a check within a week to offset some of the costs. Then, about two and got me a check within a week to offset some of the costs. Then, about two months later, I cut my finger and ended up in the hospital, on my vacation no less. I contacted them again and even with several hospital visits and different hospitals/doctors involved, they are working it out while I simply get better and go back to work. The employees in the LA office have been more than helpful with the claims, and do all of the paperwork involved, instead of me having to "prove" the injury to them. They simply ask a few questions, get the paperwork together, and my claim is paid quickly without a lot of fuss.

Commendable Copper: Mike Jinks

This edition of the Northeast article is This edition of the Northeast article is going to be a little different than usual.

Mike Jinks has been a part of our lives for so long. To call him a friend is not enough. Mike is family to us all. He has been a part of Northeast AM watch for such a long time. Not seeing him on the back dock upsets the balance of the day am sure that he thinks of Northeast as a Hollenbeck Division. He wheeled to Central Division on January 24, 1974. On February 16, 1975, Mike transferred over to Northeast Division. Mike has been at Northeast Division for the past 26 years. On September 9, 1990, Mike took over a P-3 spot at Northeast. He continued training probationers on AM watch until this holiday season. He has spent his career doing what he loves to do—working the field. Mike has made a life out of patrol. Mike is an outstanding officer, yet he has never been one to brag about his career. He not only has touched the Northeast employees, but also the citizens in the area. Mike has assisted so many of the citizens of Los Angeles that his commendable copper capers are end-less. If the job wasn't enough, Mike also spent much of his time working many other jobs. With two daughters, Jody and Jenny, and his wife, Mary, he needed the money!

Mike was planning to retire in July. Thile planning his retirement, Mike got While planni worker. He is full of spirit and full of worker. He is full of spirit and full of heart ... sometimes he is full of %@H. As Mike says, "What the h*I!!" He is like a hyper child that does not want to stop. We know if he is not at work, he is off doing some other activity. Mike has been known to spend much of his time enjoying life. He does not harp over what has been. He enjoys what is. Mike's leaving work is a loss to the Department and the citizens in the city. and the citizens in the city.

Mike, we all miss you here at work and we all send our love to you and to your family. We all want to send out a special recognition to you for touching all our lives with happiness, joy and a lot of laughter. You have helped many of us develop into better people by knowing you and letting us view your spirited personality. I wish that I could only do the same for others. You have made a positive influence on all of us. Thank you, Mike! Telling you best wishes is not enough. All your friends and family at Northeast Division love and miss you. We all are reaching out to you and letting you know how much you are a part of all of us. Please come to us if you need anything. We love ya, man!

Officer Needs Help!

What does that mean to you? What does through your heart when you hear that on the rover? When the RTO tells us that an officer needs help, all else stops. Thoughts go through our minds of the worst scenario possible. If we are able, we drop all we are doing and the day changes. We go en route to the location and assist in any way we are able. If we can't go to the scene, we listen for, 'Code 4, all officers accounted for."

If you know someone with cancer or if have it yourself, may you and yours be blessed with all glory the world can offer. I have lost people close to me with cancer and I have friends that are survivors. I am close to many that are faced with the heartache of watching their loved ones go through the hard times. As officers we tend to hold our heads up/ and show no emotion. We know this is to help us get through the day and able to handle whatever comes our way. Hold your head up, but don't forget to let those around you know that you care. It goes a long way. Make sure you always let others know how you feel, we never know what tomorrow holds for us.

What would you do to help another officer? Many of us at Northeast want to do what we can to help the Jinks family. do what we can to help the miss ramily. If you want to add your help, join in with us. The Northeast family is planning on putting a helping hand out to one of our own. Mike is going through a lot and his family could use some assistance from his LAPD family. Any donations possible to help out the Jinks family are greatly appreciated. (Don't tell Mike; he is too proud to ask for help.)

Please send any donations to: Mike Jinks, c/o Mike Gilbert, Northeast Station, 3353 San Fernando Rd., Los Angeles, CA 90065.

Comings and Goings

Other than Mike taking sick time away from us, we also are losing a lot of other good people. Lt. Biersborn has worked with us for a little over a year and now he is leaving us for Central Division. Det. Kathy Brooks is off to Foothill. P-III
Jesse Sanchez is also off to Central and following him is Officer Javier Navarro. Sgt. Ponce is going to Jail Division (Ugh!).

Promoting to P-III is Officer Pablo Vitar. Guess Northeast lost out on that one. Pablo, did you check with SAG and if it's okay to work in Hollywood without their approval? Det. II Zimmerman is now a 77th Sergeant. Making detectives are Officer Padilla in Hollywood, Officer Mattingly in Southwest and Officer S. Martinez in Wilshire. Officer Abrams is now a P-II in West Valley. Det. Michelson is now Det. II in IAG. (Remember we really like you a lot, Stuart!) Congratulations to

A few minutes later, the Deft exited the car and began to shoot a handgun into the sky.

The Duce watch rode their police motorcycles up towards the Deft, as did McClary with his police car. The Deft walked away, ignoring the officers com-mands. The Deft then threw his car keys on top of the roof of the bar and surren-

McClary asked the Deft what his name was. The Deft replied with a very slurred voice, "I no friggin' gun. Nothin', not me!" The Deft was DUI with a BAC of .15%. McClary got the Deft's wallet and opened it in front of him. In the wallet was a plastic baggy with cocaine. The Deft began to laugh and said, "That's cocaine for me!"

Rausch searched the Deft's car and found a loaded 9mm Beretta under the drivers seat. But the gun was cold and there weren't any spent casings on the ground. Envelopes with pictures of people along with cards resembling DMV ID, Social Security & Immigration cards were also found. The ashtray was searched and 3 live rounds from a .22 caliber was located.

A search was conducted in the parking lot and a .22 cal revolver was found. The revolver had 5 expended & 1 live rounds. The Deft was booked for discharging a firearm. Great job to Brian McClary and the Duce watch team!

City Hall would leave it at 68 degrees and forget about turning it up to eighty-eight in February. We've still got a couple of weeks of winter left.

Nevertheless, we again had 22 Old Blue team members answer up at roll call. They quickly got down to taking care of business and wound up with some great qualifying times for next month's big event, the 17th running of the Chuck Foote and the Chuck Foote and Larry Moore inspired extravaganza known as the Baker to Vegas Relay Race on April 7 & 8. #### Soccer Tournament to Benefit the LAPD

Scorpion Soccer Tournament is once again proud to organize its sixth annual event, which is scheduled to kickoff on Saturday, March 24, 2001, and hosted at the city of Glendale, California. The specific purpose of this event is to help improve community support for law enforcement and and fire departments. LAPD, Det. De Leon established this organization in 1995 with this idea in mind. This event could not be made possible, if it was not by the effort of the following people: Los Angeles County Sheriff, Det. Richard Ramirez, Los Angeles Fire Der Ramirez, Los Angeles Fire Department, Mike Anderson, LAPD Detectives Hugo Zepeda, Don Barfield, and Sgt. Stephanie Kraschir, and Det. York Tsuruta, who combines a soccer team from the South Bay area of Los Angeles. Thanks to their effort, we continue inter-acting officers, firemen, community young men and women, and media personalities in our yearly soccer event.

Participating officers and firemen expressed satisfaction with the outcome of each prior event, and look forward to of this year's tournament. It helps them, they stated, to not only mingle with the community and help with the organizathem with an opportunity to sharpen their soccer skills in preparation for the California Police Olympics.

Scorpion Soccer Tournament sincere ly appreciates the professionalism, respect for others, and the fair play demonstrated by our off-duty law enforcement and firemen representatives during our prior events. As founder during our prior events. As founder or this organization and organizer, I feel proud to say that our purpose is well received by many community leaders, and the community at whole. In demon-stration of their support, we have received letters of commendations and certificates of appreciation by mayors, city councils, foreign diplomats and many others.

We continue to grow in numbers and organizations that join us every year to support our project. For example, last, seaf we received support from the Los Angeles Police Relief, La Ley, Jackie Goldberg's and John Ferraro's office.

This year, in addition to the previously mentioned, we have the support from organizations such as Fraternal Officers Associations. Hispanic Firemen Association, and Villaraigosa for city mayor.

In our prior events, we were happy to have the presence of Capt. III Garner, Lt. Guerrero, Lynwood Mayor Ricardo Sanchez, Bell Gardens Mayor David Torres, and Oscar Benavides, General Consulate from El Salvador, who help us present trophies and plaques to our par-

IAPD Motocross Team

By Rich Swisher

Welcome back race fans! After the state and the control of the con and nerve against riders from all over the world. We are also racing a Fire & Police Motocross National benefit race in Ohio this summer that already has NYPD nervous and talkin' smack about us. We have grown accustomed to this tough, as we have been the mark for others to shoot for the last two years. Even the recruitment department has taken note. They took a team photo to display at their booth, and set up a booth at the EA

The Team, well most of it anyway.

our 2001 efforts and hopefully for many years to come. We are also more than happy to welcome back FMF racing, TROY LEE DESIGNS, ACERBIS, MAXIMA racing oils, BELL helmets, TWISTED THREADS casual clothing, PRO ACTION suspension, and FACTORY 909. The generous help the Mudslingees receive from these companies, our team wouldn't be the huge success that it is today. To recap last year, the team collectively won FOUR NATIONAL MOTOCROSS TITLES, and enough medals to completely cover one of those display cases up at the academy that, we have, our eye on Mudslingers have also left their mark on local CMC, District 37, Golden State Championships, Wintage Iron Championships too. This year we are kickin'it up a notch and increasing our efforts to global proportions. We will be contesting the World Police and Fire Games in Indianapolis pitting our skills

Sports Supercross in Anaheim. At the race, LAPD officers at the recruitment both weren't surprised to have people come up and ask about the team. However, they were a bit taken back by the people, non-police officers, that said they know about our team, follow our progress, and want to know how to get involved with it. Kudos to all of you Mudslingers that put the LAPD on the MX map! Cathedral City PD has a youth motocross program to bring fathers and sons together and their chief was at the supercross in support of this program. Maybe someday LA. will cut the mudslingers loose to do something like that? SLO Bob Bishop at Devonshire has been coordinating monthly riding days at a rented out local track where racers, family members and anyone you bring can have a blast rippin' it up from dawn to dusk. These practice days have sold out weeks in advance, so if you and your family want to get in on one, get a hold of Bob ASAP.

Troy Lee Vesigns

Mudslinger Of The Moriti

The results are in and the first winners of the "Troy Lee Designs, Mudslinger of the Month Award" are two young riders that just did their first MX race. The winners are Armando and Andrew, the sons of Ofcr George Castro/West LA Area. Armando and Andrew just raced a Grand Prix, team style race at Glen Helen which was their first ever race. Each guy reportedly went down in the muddy terrain two or three times, but there were no injuries and the two are hopelessly hooked on racing. Congrats to you Armando and Andrew. Your reward is that you can place a one-time order directly to Troy Lee Designs for whatever you want and only have to pay the team price! This award will be given out every couple of months to any non-team member that sends in a reason why they deserve the award. The savings you will receive could be worth hundreds of dollars. Some examples of deserving reasons are: first time riding a bicycle, first wheelie, big crash, or whatever else you all think of. Send your photos and stories to Ofcr Swisher at ATD for you, or your kid's chance to win.

The Central Coast Fuzz That Wuzz

by Dave Aikins

A grand hello from all of us former LAPD folks residing on the Control LAPD folks residing on the Central Coast. Well, it's still winter, but the recent rains have brought the green out in the hills and valleys and the warm weather has made it feel like it's spring already. What a great place to live.

Our next Fuzz gathering will have a ew twist. Due to the efforts of Tom and Dorie Zwinger, we are going to come together and break bread in beautiful Avila Beach. Tom and Dorie, along with Al Schlocker, are members of the San Luis Yacht Club and it has been reserved for us Fuzz Folks in March. It will be a day of great fellowship.

As you may know, beautiful Avila Beach has been the center of controverover the recent years when oil was discovered under a resident's property when he was doing some construction. Now that might seem like a rewarding discovery (remember the Beverly Hillbillies), but it seems that Unocal Oil Company, who had been pumping oil out of the area over the past 50 years had a leak in one of their main pipelines. It unfortunately created an enormous mess under the beach and the surrounding area. After a multitude of lawsuits and political maneuvering, Unocal agreed to clean up the area with a multi-million dollar project. The project was complet-ed in three phases and many of the businesses along the beachfront at the '50s era funky beach were eliminated in the process. The Yacht Club that stood at the beginning of the Avila Pier was removed, stored and finally replaced during the renovation project. The neat thing was that the project was completed on schedule and is now open to the public. It amazing what private industry can dowhen it is put to the task. The renovations have made the beach an exciting place to visit. Some of the atmosphere of the funky beach has remained; however, many new features have created an entirely different feeling when visiting. of the San Luis Bay is breathtaking.

The surrounding area is engulfed with beautiful rolling hills containing a superb 18-hole golf course and beautiful sandy beach. Down the road a mile or so sandy beach. Down the road a mile or so is Port San Luis, a fishing and boating community where Judy and I recently took our grandson, Ryan, out for a whale watching trip. The excursion was a rewarding one as about nine miles off store, we came along side six California gray whales surging through the blue ocean water, headed for the warmer Maxison water. They expend to move Mexican water, neaded for the warmer Mexican waters. They seemed to move effortlessly and quietly in their journey south. When their massive flutes would appear, they would begin deep dive and would soon return to the surface, blowing massive amounts of water from their

Another interesting spot is the nearby Diablo Canyon Nuclear Plant. Say, what? Yeah, this controversial power plant has endured a lot of turmoil over the years. However, when the lights started gong out, it suddenly became a good friend as it puts out mega amounts of electricity. Interesting how things change overnight.

OK, what does all this mean? Avila Beach is the place to be for our Fuzz folks, family and friends, as we will have time to hang around and chat during the afternoon. The critical information fol-

SABLA—Sacramento Area Blue Line Association

What can I say! Having my gluteus maximus threatened by an unknown shoe size situated on the foot of Bernie Remas, I volunteered to write the SABLA articles for the next three months. Bernie and Judy are in Florida basking in the sun. Well, Judy may be, however, I think Bernie is counting chads!

Our chairman, Ed Lewandowski, opened the first meeting for the year 2001 with 16 members enjoying a fine lunch. We meet on the second Thursday each month at the Friends restaurant, located at 10750 Olson Drive in Rancho Cordova. The restaurant phone number is (916) 635-9942. Our next meeting will be on March 8th at 11:30 a.m.

John Ide, currently residing in the Auburn area, was introduced as the newest member of our group. According to our secretary-treasurer Hoy Key, he is the 60th paid member of SABLA. Also, it is interesting to note that John is the fifth member of SABLA that retired from OCID. Is there intelligence in our group or what??

Chairman Ed announced the following events to put on your calendar:

Sunday, May 20, 2001: arrangements underway to have our "Spring Fling" underway to have our Spring Fing-Bar-B-Q within the gated community of Greenstone. The food, as in the past years, will be catered by the award win-ning "Back Forty" restaurant, with lots of tasty food. Ed and his wife, Cindy, always put a lot of work into making this event a great afternoon of enjoyment for all. Plan to attend!!

Thursday, December 20, 2001: annual SABLA Christmas party at the Sun City Lodge in Roseville. Ask any of the 58 people that attended the event last year and they will tell you about lots of great food and gifts for all. Thanks again to Ed and Cindy for putting it all together

Chairman Ed suggested the possibility of members engaging in some "fun time" golfing, perhaps after time" golfing, perhaps after one of our monthly meetings. Gene DeCrona agreed to inquire into the availability and costs involved and present the information at the next

Our thoughts and prayers a you. Keep up the good work!!

coachella Valley Blue Line and Golf Club

by Ron and Elayne Gray

Our first golf tournament and mixer of 2001 was held Feb. 9 at Cathedral Canyon Country Club hosted by Aaron Canyon Country Cuto nosted by Aaron and Lyn Montaño. Thirty-two golfers were challenged by a "no pressure" format created by the devious minds of Aaron and Lyn. Well, we survived, but if you ever hear the words "no pressure" solden by either one of the Montaños—sold of course, it helps if you. RUN. Of course, it helps if you happen to have one of them on your team. We both did, and it certainly made our games easier

After golf we met at the home of Lyn's mother in Indian Wells for a Hawaiian buffet and mixer. She fit over 50 of us in her beautiful home with room to spare. Thank you, Virginia, for your hospitality. wonderful.

Al Fried brought the meeting to order and welcomed first-time visitors Al and Sherry Santor. The Santors both retired om Van Nuys Division where Al was Watch Commander and Sherry worked Detectives. It was good to have them with us and hope they come back.

Also joining us were our resident "snow-birds," Jack and Deane Garrison down from Oregon. Cliff Hodge and Charlie Dahlburg managed to find time to join us between "casino-hopping," Joe Van Fleet, Don Vincent, and Terry Hunter were a few more whom we hadn't seem for a while.

Lyn Montaño got everyone's attention in her own inimitable way and proceeded to announce the day's golf awards

First place (after a card off) with a score of 70, went to Joe Van Fleet, Aaron Montaño and Elayne Gray. They each received an engraved first place medal AND a golf bag. How about that for a class event! Second place (under protest) was Don Stagnaro, Cliff Hodge, Charlene Reming and Mery Cooper.
Third with a 72 was Sandy Palmer,
Larry DeLosh, Sandy Watson and Ken Boden. Last, but certainly not least under this format, were Ron Ellena, Jay Snow, Yolanda Villanueva and Jim Murphy with 75.

Yolie Villanueva and Lyn Montaño won Closest-to-the-Pin (ladies). Closest to the Pin (men) went to Ken Boden. Longest Drive (men) was won by Ken Boden and Longest Drive (ladies) Lyn Montaño and Bonnie Ellena. Other prizes (for many, many reasons) went to Al Fried, George Avans, Dick King and Quint Villanueva. We'll let them explain

If you're a desert-dweller (or visitor), make sure Sandy Palmer has your name, address and e-mail address. She is putting together the 2001 roster and needs that information to keep us all informed of coming events. Contact her at 818-349-3161 or e-mail CVBLUELINE@AOL.COM. Membership is a mere $5 per year and well worth it.

Our next tournament and mixer will e hosted by Al and Sharon Fried at be hosted by Al and Sharon Fried at Woodhaven Country Club on March 30th. We have an awful lot of fun and would sure like to share it with you.

Central Arizona Blue Line Assn.

by Howard Barnes

We're back!! We have some good and some bad news.

We had a meeting Saturday, January 20 at Tivoli's restaurant in Sun City, Arizona, but we only had 21 people show up. For the ones that did not make it, you missed a fine time and a nice lunch for only $6.50 and a lot of good conversations thrown in for free.

The member that came the farthest was Dick McCormick from Sun Lakes, a 93-mile roundtrip but our oldest member who is 98 years old walked to the place (three blocks)—that was Leo Wilson

Now for the bad news. J.P. Nelson, Now for the bad news, J.P. Netson, our president, said he has to give up the presidency because of work schedule. After getting this started and all the legwork, he feels he just doesn't have the time to devote to the Club. So we elected a new president (Railroad). Jim Gleason accepted after a lot of arm twisting, and Paul "Bud" Holmes as his backup. Ron Hardman is still Treasurer and Howard & Grace Barnes will stay on as Secretary, and Dick McCormick as Publicity. Our dues are now $7 per household.
